BRIDGE FALL HURLS 18 INTO FLOOD

BRIDGE PLUNGE KILLS MAN

James P. Murray, 34, of 241 Fisk street, was killed today in a 210-foot plunge from the Bloomfield Bridge to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks, and a few blocks away his 67-year-old mother sat crying and pulling at her dress with nervous fingers, unaware that "Jimmy" was dead, but convinced something was wrong, because "Jimmy" didn't drink his coffee this morning.

Murray leaped or fell from the bridge into the deepest part of the ravine between 8 and 9 o'clock this morning. His body was found by John O'Rourke, 1106 Grandview avenue, an hour later. No one apparently saw him go over the bridge rail in the morning fog, although an unidentified Negro told police he saw an object which he believed was a piece of paper

SACK DEATH PROBED HERE

Lindy Case, Maniac Linked in Slaying Of Girl

Investigation of the brutal slaying of Rose Gendler, pretty Rock Island, Ill., sales girl whose body was found in aburlap bag and hurled to the ice from a bridge spanning Rock River, turned to Pittsburgh today.

A number of Pittsburgh male acquaintances of the girl whose names were in a note book found in the girl's clothing are to be questioned, State's Attorney Francis C. King, in charge of the probe, said. Other acquaintances of the girl from Chicago, Cincinnati and New York also are to be questioned.

King has declined to reveal the names. He said Pittsburgh authorities would be asked to question the Pittsburghers.

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—A "thrill slayer," whose perverted imagination was inflamed by the Lindbergh baby kidnaping and murder, may have perpetrated the savage killing of Rose Gendler

Baffled in their hunt for the person or persons who stuffed the 22-year-old girl in a burlap sack and flung her to death on the ice of Rock River, investigating authorities today leaned toward the theory that the crime was the work of a maniac.

For the second time the girl's two step-brothers, Samuel and David Mark, were questioned last night. The men were required to print the words of the note which demanded $2,000 for Miss Gendler's release.

Father Tells How Devil Rite Killed Child

LINDEN, Tex., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Because he watched his crippled daughter die while two fanatical preachers allegedly were performing "divine healing" rites they believed would exorcise a "devil" responsible for her affliction, Sherman Clayton, backwoodsman, was held today on a murder charge.

Clayton readily told officers of the strange ceremony when arrested late yesterday at the rural community, 10 miles west of Linden, where his 5-year-old child, Bernice, died.

He said the preacher brothers, Paul Oakley and Coy Oakley, who likewise have been charged with the slaying, had prayed for the cure of his child. Bernice had been paralyzed due to an attack of infantile paralysis more than two years ago. Clayton explained:

"I didn't interfere when they were working with her on the floor because I didn't have my mind on the child. I was praying and had my mind on the Lord.

"The Oakleys told me she was in a heavenly-ordained coma. Paul said she was under God's power and if I left her alone she would be all right. It was hours before I realized she was dead."

Sheriff Nat Curtright disclosed a statement purportedly signed by Paul Oakley in which the preacher is quoted as admitting the child died with his hands on her throat. The statement allegedly said:

"I thought God sent me to heal the child, but the devil killed her through me. I thought it was God working through me, but after she was dead God told me I was deceived, that it was the devil."

In his jail cell Paul Oakley yelled repeatedly: "I'm God," or "I'm the devil." He gave his age as 20. His brother is 25.

POPE SETS HOLY YEAR IN '33

Pontiff Asks Prayer In World Beset With Trouble

By GUGLIELMO EMANUEL
International News Service.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 24. To encourage prayer and atonement in a world beset with materialistic troubles, Pope Pius XI today proclaimed celebration of a holy year from April, 1933, to April, 1934, commemorating the nineteenth centenary of the death of Christ.

The proclamation was delivered by His Holiness in a Christmas message to the Sacred College of Cardinals, gathered in the great Consistory Hall of the Vatican.

BENEFIT TO WORLD

His Holiness said:

"It will be of great benefit to the world, not to hear talk of conflicts and mistrust, arms and disarmament, debts and reparations and the solving of miseries both industrial and social.

"So we move that this commemoration of the nineteenth century of Christ's death should extend during a full year, which we proclaim a holy year so as to permit the faithful to have maximum value for prayer and atonement."

In proclaiming next year a holy year, the Pope referred to the scientific controversy over the actual time of the death of Christ. He said:

"Science is not so sure as believers that 1933 can be identi-

WOMAN DIES, MANY HURT IN CRASH

Group Returning From School Party Periled

PARSONS, W. Va., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—One woman was drowned, 17 persons injured and several others unaccounted for today following the collapse of a swinging bridge over Otter Creek near the Otter Creek school house last night.

When a cable of the swinging bridge over the rugged rock-bottomed creek, which is nearly at flood stage, collapsed as many persons were returning from a Christmas program at the rural school, at least 18 persons who were on the bridge were plunged into the icy waters.

WIDOW DROWNED

Mrs. Julia Carr, 55, widow of Bee Carr, of Otter Creek, is known to have drowned, although her body has not been recovered.

Seventeen other persons, including men, women and children, who were crossing the bridge when the cable broke, were plunged into the swirling mountain stream, suffering injuries which, however, are believed to be not serious.

State police, Tucker County officers and volunteers today are searching for Mrs. Carr's body. Investigations are also being conducted to determine whether any of the other 150 persons who attended the program at the school were drowned.

SWIFT STREAM

Persons residing near the school house said that Otter Creek is one of the swiftest streams in West Virginia. Shaver's Fork and Dry Forks creeks unite at Parsons, forming Cheat River. Otter Creek empties into Dry Fork Creek near the place where the accident occurred.

More than 159 persons attended the Christmas entertainment last evening at the Otter Creek School, where Delbert Arbogast is teacher. As these persons were returning home, the small suspension bridge was taxed to its capacity. The bridge is supported by two cables and one snapped under the weight of the crowd.

SINKING SHIP SENDS S. O. S.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The British freighter Newbrough broadcast an SOS early today, stating it was sinking off the Island of Jamaica, with its engine room flooded.

The call, picked up by Station WAX at Miami, Fla., was rebroadcast to the liner President McKinley, which replied that she would proceed to the position given, 125 miles, or about eight hours, away.

The Miami station's call also was picked up by the Coast Guard in New York.

30 Men Trapped By Mine Blast

DECATUR, Ill., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A gas explosion in the Mowequa Coal Company mine, near Decatur, at 9:30 a. m. today, imprisoned 30 miners underground.

All means of communication with the entombed men was stopped by the damage done by the explosion. An immediate call was dispatched to the state Department of Mines and Minerals for help.

24 Injured As Bus Upsets

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Dec. 24.—Twenty-four persons were reported injured in a bus wreck near Laughlin's Corners, Pa., about nine miles east of here, today.

Motor cars were called from Chester, W. Va., across the Ohio River, to bring the injured to the East Liverpool Hospital.

At 10:30 a. m., the first of the injured reached the hospital, where attendants said none of them was in a serious condition.

The bus, although a Greyhound, was being used by the Yellowway Coach Company, it was said here. It was en route west when it skidded and overturned twice in the Lincoln Highway, police reported.

Anna Fay's Husband Dies in East at 72

MELROSE, Mass., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—David H. Pingree, 72, manager and later husband of the late Anna Eva Fay, who toured the theaters of the world as a mind reader, died yesterday.

For almost 30 years Anna Eva Fay toured the world with Pingree as her manager. She died five years ago.

3 HOLD UP CAR IN M'KEESPORT

BULLETIN.

A lone robber held up the Brackmann Drug Store, Rochelle and Georgia avenues, Knoxville, shortly before noon today, and escaped with about $100 after a chase through streets of the vicinity. B. M. Jolliffe, of 402 Zara street, Knoxville, a customer, was also held up and searched.

Forced to the curb by two men who jumped to the running board of her car at Columbus avenue and Ives street as she slowed down for a traffic light, Eva R. Sickeler, 26, of 308 Highland lane, Sewickley, was robbed of her purse containing $25, according to a report to Woods Run police.

A McKeesport - Wilmerding street car was boarded and robbed early this morning by three armed men, who took $20 and tokens from the operator, but did not bother two passengers.

The bandits boarded the car at State road, McKeesport, and as the car slowed down for Burkholder's stop, near East McKeesport, they drew guns and commanded the motorman, Raul T. Tabble, 144 Evans street, McKeesport, to stop the car.

One of the men pointed his gun at the passengers while the other two took money, tokens and the change holder from Tabble. They then left the car and ordered Tabble to go on.

William E. Speer, 73, of Noblestown, attendant at the Jennings Service Station, Noblestown road, Oakdale, today was nursing lacerations and bruises on the head inflicted with blackjacks by two thugs who robbed him of $63 in the station last night.

Barry, Pal Freed In Prison Riot Case

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—George Small and his fellow-inmate, Arthur Barry, jewel thief, were acquitted by a jury in Cayuga County Court today of rioting charges. The jury had been out exactly 19 hours.

LILA LEE, FILM MAN ENGAGED

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 24.—(Universal.)—A huge sparkler on the engagement finger of Lila Lee, film actress, gave her friends a chance to wish her happiness today.

That ring was put on Lila's finger by George Hill, one of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's best known directors.

The engagement isn't exactly a surprise, for Lila and George have been "keeping company" for nearly a year. He was formerly the husband of Frances Marion, noted scenario writer.

Lila was formerly the wife of James Kirkwood, screen actor. They were divorced several years ago. Her new marriage is expected to take place early in the new year.

Two Bus Bandits Hunted in Aliquippa

Aliquippa police today are searching for two armed Negroes who held up a Woodlawn and Southern bus just after it had discharged passengers at Davis and Spalding streets, Aliquippa, last night. The bandits took $25 from Gus McClure, the driver.

Isley Tate's Brothers Buy Guns at Auction

Stern Mountain Men Bid in Belongings Of Slain 'Czar'

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Stern men of the mountains returned to their desolate cabins today, carrying with them many of the worldly belongings of their erstwhile neighbor, Isley Tate, slain mountaineer.

At an auction sale yesterday the guns, cows, clothes—even a match box owned by Tate, whose sons have pleaded guilty to the killing, went to the "highest bidder."

Brothers of the "mountain lord," who dominated the section about his home at Bruceton Mills, W. Va., purchased several of his guns.

A cow brought $19.50 from another bidder; the match box, found in Tate's pocket after his body was discovered a few miles over the West Virginia line, sold for 70 cents, and the cap he wore went for 75 cents.

Midshipman Dies, 5 Hurt In Crash

WRENS, Ga., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Midshipman J. A. Smith of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md., was killed, and five other midshipmen injured, some seriously, in an automobile-train collision here early today.

The party was en route to Albany, Ga., Smith's home, for the Christmas holidays.

The crash occurred at a crossing here about 6:30 a. m., when the machine collided with a freight train on the Savannah and Atlanta Railroad.

BEDFORD, Pa., Dec. 24.—William E. Burkett, 17-year-old premedical student at Mercersburg Academy, was killed when his automobile left the Lincoln highway near Everett this morning.

A companion, Robert Brenning, of Everett, escaped injury. Burkett died within 15 minutes after the accident at the Timmons Hospital, where he was rushed by other motorists.

The young man was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Burkett, of Everett, and was home for the Christmas vacation.

De Valera Regime Facing Overthrow

DUBLIN, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Possibility that the government of President Eamonn de Valera, of the Irish Free State, may be overthrown was seen today in an announcement that Laborites would oppose the government's proposal for reducing salaries of civil servants.

It was pointed out that withdrawal of Laborite support would probably mean defeat of the De Valera government in the Dail.

VOLPE SEIZED IN RUM RAID

Joe Volpe, youngest of the Volpe clan, three of whom were murdered in a recent bootleggers' war, is under arrest as the result of a series of raids made by Wilmerding police.

In a 10-car garage in Patton street, near Middle avenue, owned by Volpe brothers, police said, 18 gallons of moonshine liquor was confiscated from the cellar of the building when it was raided yesterday. Volpe, found on the premises, was arrested and later released on $500 bail bond.

Tony Tucker, proprietor of a nearby confectionery store, also was arrested when police found a small quantity of moonshine in the store. Joseph Hyrsjk, found in a storeroom at 7 Caldwell avenue, was arrested when police reported seizing liquor.

The three men will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace J. T. Small, East McKeesport, Tuesday.

Fall Against Stove Causes Man's Death

Injuries incurred a month ago when he fell against a stove in his home caused the death today of Frank Rozunska, 33, of 2500 Lebanon street, according to a morgue report. Rozunska died in South Side Hospital.

Tornado Topples 15 Homes in Arkansas

ENGLAND, Ark., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A tornado ripped a path about 50 feet wide and more than a half-mile long through the southwestern part of this city about 1 a. m. today, damaging or demolishing between 12 and 15 frame dwellings. Chief of Police C. W. Wayne said no one was injured seriously, though a dozen or more persons received minor hurts.

Mellon to Arrive In City Tomorrow

Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, who arrived in New York from London Thursday, is expected to arrive in Pittsburgh tomorrow morning to spend Christmas with relatives and friends. Upon arrival in New York he told reporters he would decide after arriving here whether he would continue to take part in Pennsylvania politics.

Hoover Party Sails On Fishing Cruise

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—President Hoover and his party, bound on a 10-day fishing cruise, arrived in Savannah at 8:30 a. m. today to be given a reception reminiscent of campaign days.

The Chief Executive and Mrs. Hoover boarded the U. S. Sequoia and shortly afterward headed down the Savannah River toward Ossabaw Sound, accompanied by three Coast Guard patrol boats, the lighthouse tender Kilkenny and the yacht Miramer.

The President hoped to be fishing in Ossabaw Sound for fresh and salt water bass within three hours after leaving Savannah.

The journey from Washington was uneventful. Arriving in Savannah, the party was met by a crowd that filled the railway station and lined the streets outside. There were applause and cheers as the President and Mrs. Hoover entered an automobile.

Mayor Thomas M. Hoynes, M. O. Dunning, Collector of the Port of Savannah, and Mrs. Dunning headed a group of prominent residents in forming a reception committee for the presidential party.

Carols to Spread Cheer Through City Tonight

Throughout the city tonight singers will observe the old tradition of wandering from house to house singing carols. No neighborhood will be without a group, according to the recreation committee of the Community Council in the Wabash Building.

From kindergarten youngsters to grandmothers, the singers, in cars and afoot, will add their voices to the Christmas cheer, especially before hospitals and the homes of shut-ins.

A special group of community "sings" has also been planned. Al Jenkinson will direct the singing at Lewis Recreation Center, Chatsworth avenue, for the people of Glenwood, Greenfield and Hazelwood, 8:30 p. m. North Side singers will meet at 10 o'clock in the park near Boggs & Buhl's.

Beechview carolers will assemble at 10 o'clock at Triangle street and Broadway. In Knoxville the meeting will be at Grate and Bausman streets at 11 o'clock. The Homewood group will meet at 11:30 at Homewood and Bennett streets.

Robin Chirps Christmas Song in Brentwood

A robin that may be either a harbinger of spring or a reader of the newspapers chirped a Christmas greeting today to Mrs. August Slenkamp and her children at 139 Hilson avenue, Brentwood, from a tree in front of their home, Mrs. Slenkamp reported.

The poets hail the bird as spring's harbinger, but the newspapers recently have chronicled the folly of one in overstaying his summer in Wisconsin, with the result that he was shipped to police at Jacksonville, Fla., where sensible robins should be at this glad Christmastide.

It was regarded possible Mrs. Slenkamp's visitor may have learned of his fellow robin's good fortune in getting free transportation to a warmer clime, and is hanging around for a similar "break."

Anyway, Mrs. Slenkamp said, he was quite cheerful about the prospect of spending Christmas in Pittsburgh.

HOOVER LEAVES WAR DEBT SOLUTION UP TO ROOSEVELT

NATION'S CHIEF IRKED OVER DISPUTE

President Abandons Moves to Solve Problem

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The United States has suggested to European debtors that they suspend discussions of war debts and other international questions until President-elect Roosevelt enters office.

This was learned in the highest official quarter, where it was said the Hoover administration considers it futile to proceed further on its original program for a commission, but would negotiate through diplomatic channels if any of the debtor nations insist.

UNEXPECTED OVERTURES

The latter declaration was prompted by the unexpected overtures from France to reopen debt negotiations, as reported after the visit to the American embassy in Paris by Premier Paul-Boncour.

While anxiously awaiting a report from Ambassador Edge, officials made it plain that unconditional payment from France would be welcomed and materially clarify the situation here and abroad.

Officials would not be surprised if the new French government sought to regain the loss of confidence by paying the $19,000,000 defaulted on December 15.

Meantime, the rift between the President and Gov. Roosevelt on the subject of linking the debts, armaments and economic questions appeared complete.

BITTERNESS CAUSED

The exchange of communications between the President and the Governor caused undisguised bitterness at the White House. It was said by a cabinet member that the President had virtually scuttled his program on world affairs as he left last night for a vacation trip.

Norman H. Davis, special envoy for the Hoover administration in Europe for the past year, talked with President Hoover for an hour yesterday before the executive left for the South.

DRY FILIBUSTER THREATENS BEER BILL

Rumors Say Bloc May Halt Action Until States Act

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The eve of Christmas found advocates of legalized beer wondering today whether a Senate filibuster after the holiday recess will block modification of the Volstead Act at the present session of Congress.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.—The eve of Christmas found advocates of legalized beer wondering today whether a Senate filibuster after the holiday recess will block modification of the Volstead Act at the present session of Congress.

There were rumors the drys would organize in the Senate to conduct a filibuster against changing the Volstead act until after the states have passed upon repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. A few Senators could block passage of the beer bill if they undertook such a fight, since a dozen appropriation bills must be passed in the eight weeks remaining after the new year.

Liberal leaders expressed disappointment over the attitude of Democratic leaders in opposing the Bingham motion yesterday for consideration of his bill, legalizing 3.2 per cent beer. Bingham said he would substitute all the beer provisions of the Collier bill, just passed by the House, for his own, but even this concession failed to stem the opposition. His motion was beaten, 23 to 48, with a score of the newly converted Democratic wets voting against it.

An analysis of the vote indicated the Collier bill will pass the Senate if it can be brought to a final vote.

PAYROLL SLASH HITS POLICE HARDEST

Fire and Inspection Services Also Lose Many Jobs

The city police and fire bureaus and the municipal inspection services were hardest hit as the result of City Council's initial step to cut $3,150,000 out of the city payroll and balance the 1933 budget.

The job eliminations include 113 in the Bureau of Police, 44 in the Detective Bureau, 65 in the Bureau of Fire, and 40 inspectors, including building inspectors, dairy, meat, food, wiring, smoke and other activities.

SUPPLIES SAVINGS

Council also cut $950,000 out of supplies and miscellaneous services, making a total reduction in the budget of Mayor Charles H. Kline of $4,100,000, and setting up appropriations of $21,100,000 for 1933.

The city deficit of $1,750,000 has not been cared for in any manner other than to increase estimated collections of delinquent taxes for next year in the belief that the partial payment plan now in effect will increase collections.

The budget-cutting went through like clockwork yesterday under the leadership of President of Council John S. Herron.

THREE FAIL TO VOTE

Three members of Council did not vote on the motion to approve the salary and appropriation bills. They were Councilmen Robert Garland, P. J. McArdle and Charles Anderson.

The typewritten program from which the budget cuts were made did not come into Council until late yesterday.

The reason given by the three Councilmen for not voting was that they had not had sufficient time to study the figures submitted by the majority. The bills will again come before Council Tuesday morning and, if passed, will be sent to the Mayor for approval.

A 16⅔ per cent salary reduction was placed in effect on all salaries within the control of Council. It is outside of Council's authority to adjust the salary of Mayor Charles H. Kline, the city assessors and a number of the elective officers.

It was hinted Council may suggest to such officials that a voluntary reduction would be desirable.

900 JOBS ELIMINATED

The action of Council chops out 500 salaried positions for a saving of $1,155,000, and 400 jobs on a daily basis for a saving of $430,000. The salary cut amounts to $1,270,000 and a reduction in the common labor rate of 45 cents an hour totals $275,000.

In the Detective Bureau, 25 out of 55 detectives were eliminated, and 14 out of 29 precinct detectives are out. An inspector of detectives has been reduced to a captain and two lieutenants have been eliminated.

In the Bureau of Police, 74 patrolmen, 18 sergeants, one turnkey, seven lieutenants and five clerks will be dismissed. Seven inspectors have been reduced to captains, making a total of 14 captains under the new plan.

In the Bureau of Fire, 42 hosemen, 10 captains and six battalion chiefs have been eliminated. All seven inspectors in the Fire Prevention Bureau are out.

In the Bureau of Building Inspection, four building inspectors, four wiring inspectors, an assistant engineer and an architectural engineer are eliminated.

The payroll of the City Home and Hospital at Mayvnew was cut $90,000.

PONTIFF SETS HOLY YEAR

fied with the real year of the death of the Saviour.

"We have made inquiries. We have found that the years 1930 to 1933 are favored for the nineteenth centenary. There is weaker reason to believe that 1934 is the actual date.

"But one year more or less detracts nothing from the benefits we have received.

DUTIFUL CELEBRATION

"We must accomplish our duty. This celebration will be dutiful and faithful."

Following the traditional ritual of pontifical Christmas greetings, the Pope then tabulated his "joys and sorrows" of the past year. He said:

"We cannot help mentioning among our sorrows those which are painful to our heart on account of the unjust persecution against the church and clergy in Spain, Mexico and Russia.

"No less painful is the prolonged duration of distrust and enmity between nations and peoples, not excluding the danger of war and civil war.

"Also painful is continuation of the economic crisis, which is without precedent in the history of the world—a crisis which is felt more among the poorer classes of workers, which are more needy of social justice and existing charity."

LISTS CONSOLATIONS

Against these sorrows, the Pope spoke gratefully of the "consolations" which had come to him. He said:

"We must also mention our consolations, which are many and great.

"The triumphant success of the Eucharistic Congress in Dublin was an admirable development of our mission abroad, even amongst great difficulties, and a notable step in the extension of the work of Catholic action.

"We must then call attention of the whole Catholic world to the glorious example of sacrifice of the bishops, clergy and faithful of the persecuted churches in Spain, Mexico and Russia.

"They form a splendid chapter among the most glorious in the history of the Roman church.

"We can add another hope of peace among Christian peoples dear to us in the case of Bolivia and Paraguay."

drop into the ravine from the structure.

They didn't tell the mother, Mrs. Margaret Murray, with whom "Jimmy" lived, that he was dead. Another son, notified by police, told her "Jimmy" was in a hospital.

But she knew something very serious had happened to "Jimmy." She cried over and over:

"I knew. I knew something was wrong. Jimmy didn't drink his coffee this morning. He always drank his coffee. I know something terrible has happened. He went out the back door, and he never goes out that way."

Murray was a machinist, but had been unemployed for two years, his mother said. His wife is dead, and they had no children. He had worried about his inability to find work, and recently had been drinking because he was despondent, Mrs. Murray said. He left the house at 7 a. m.

The father, John Murray, was killed 33 years ago in Coraopolis when an emery wheel he was operating broke and struck him.

DENTIST'S NOTE ADMITS KILLING

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A note found in the locked desk of Dr. Squire P. Bevier, 60-year-old dentist, in whose office Mrs. Josephine Stark Elder, 71, was found yesterday, beaten to death, today caused police to believe Dr. Bevier may have ended his life in the Mississippi River yesterday.

The note, written in pencil, said in part:

"This d—n blackmailer got hers—me for the river."

On the other side of the note was written:

"Everything I possess belongs to Martha, Jane and Audrey Rose, nothing to Loed or Fern by former marriage—let (here was written the name of a man) take care of (a woman's name). He broke up three homes and is keeping (the same woman's name). Goodbye.

Mrs. Elder was the mother of former Judge Conway Elder, prominent St. Louis attorney.

We've Two Bills For Beer . . May They Both Win!

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Looks like they found Senator Bingham in Congressman Collier's stocking.

Collier rushed his beer bill through the side door of the House and had it aimed for the family entrance of the Senate.

Bingham wants the Senate to vote on his own beer bill first. He's plowing with Collier's mule.

If Bingham's bill gallops the gauntlet he will substitute the text of Collier's bill. But the loving cup will be engraved with Bingham's name.

As Bingham-on-the-Rhine is a Republican and Collier is a Democrat, you can easily see why you don't have to eat razzberries to develop a pink toothbrush.

The Republicans are trying to steal the Democratic thunder. They're jumping off the wharf after the boat has sailed.

We hope Collier and Bingham are both successful. We've reached that stage where we need two laws about everything.

Benefit Sunday Shows Praised By Minister

Assistance in Feeding Needy Welcomed By Dr. Lang

Appreciation of Sunday shows to provide food for needy families was expressed today by the Rev. Dr. David Lang, pastor of Shady Avenue Presbyterian Church, as food was announced as the admission price to the Warner Theater tomorrow afternoon and night.

Dr. Lang, who has been carrying on charitable work in his district for a year, told the Warner management:

"As one of the ministers of Pittsburgh, I wish to express my heartiest appreciation of your generous action in giving freely of your building and staff, for three Sundays in succession to collect food, clothing and toys for the needy families of Allegheny County in these days of dire distress.

"I, for one, can use to a good advantage some of the supplies. Besides the many needy families I know personally, our ladies at a great sacrifice have been serving free breakfasts for a whole year to about 30 undernourished children each school day in the basement of the church and, of course, any help is welcome. We make no distinction as to creed or color, but are trying to do our bit and carry on like so many others in the grim war against poverty.

"Any individual or organization which honestly and unselfishly is helping to meet the need of the hour, has I can assure you, my wholehearted cooperation and I earnestly hope that, through your efforts and the generosity of your patrons, Santa Claus will brighten many a home at this Christmas season."

Undernourished pupils of the Shakespeare School are Dr. Lang's daily breakfast guests. Like many congregations, the Shady avenue church faces financial problems. First volunteering to accept a 25 per cent salary reduction to aid the church, Dr. Lang went further by refusing pay for November, December and January.

The Protestant charities are to share in tomorrow's contributions at the Warner. Only food items will gain admission to the continuous performances from 2 until 11 p. m. It will be the third Sunday show. Donations of the preceding performances were given to Catholic and Jewish charities.

MAN KILLED BY AUTO

Maurice Goldstein, 60, of 300 Craft avenue, was injured fatally, and Miss Betty Kleckner, 22, of 342 Ophelia street, suffered lacerations and bruises when they were struck by an automobile while crossing Boulevard of the Allies at Craft avenue last night.

Goldstein died an hour later in Mercy Hospital. Andrew Funa, 20, alleged driver, of 420 Fourth avenue, Homestead, was held in $1,000 bond pending a coroner's inquest.

C. H. Henning, 35, of 1329 Lincoln avenue, suffered a probable fracture of the skull early today in a collision of automobiles at Braddock avenue and Bennett street. He was taken to Pittsburgh Hospital.

Sylvester Marcurak, 21, of 300 Columbia avenue, West View, sustained lacerations to his face and body early today in the collision of an automobile and a truck on Bloomfield Bridge. Frank Bylak, 21, of 382 Lawn street, alleged driver of the automobile, was arrested on a reckless driving charge.

JURY 'FIX' CASE NEARS END

BUTLER, Pa., Dec. 24.—The defense of Robert Cunningham, Pittsburgh contractor, to the charge that he attempted to influence jurors summoned for service in the Kline-Succop malfeasance trial, was to end this afternoon. Testimony of Roy C. Aiken, of Bakerstown, the state's principal witness, was attacked and denied by two employes of Cunningham, who contended that Cunningham was out of town on dates mentioned by Aiken. They said that when Aiken appeared at another date he showed Cunningham a list of prospective jurors and was advised not to get mixed up in the case.

Character witnesses for Cunningham were called late yesterday.

Thirteen in New Club Defi Superstitions

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—At last something is going to be done for the looking glass industry.

A group of Chicagoans has organized a mirror smashing society, which will also do something in the way of uplift for the salt makers.

They're going to smash mirrors, spill salt and do the other things the superstitious believe will bring bad luck just to prove that they won't.

There are 13 charter members of the group and they call themselves the "Anti-Superstitious Society."

For 13 days beginning January 1 and ending Friday, January 13 they are going to perform their ritual, and then sit down at a table and laugh at bad luck—that is provided they are able. The 13 "bad luck" acts included:

Light a cigar or cigaret from a match which two other persons are using, walk under ladders, spill salt, smash mirrors, see black cats, make remarks about expected successes without knocking on wood, sing before breakfast, which is considered especially bad, spend a day looking for pins and not picking them up, and perform all the unlucky actions over again on January 13.

January 10 was suggested as a good day to hang up seven years bad luck with the mirror breaking.

RICH AND HUMBLE WORSHIP AT BETHLEHEM SHRINE

PILGRIMS FLOCK FROM AFAR TO MANGER

Good Will Dwells Over Barren Hills At Yuletide

By RUTH SLATER
International News Service.

BETHLEHEM, Dec. 24.—There is a crisp tang in the air tonight as another Christmas celebration draws near.

In the streets of the quiet town there is unwonted movement as though the spirit of another age had entered.

The lowly beggar and wealthy merchant humbly stand together at the entrance of the Church of the Nativity, where ancient bells send forth their enduring message.

PILGRIMS FROM AFAR

There is good will in Bethlehem, among these barren, desert hills, where first shone the heralding star. Pilgrims have come from the most remote corners of the earth, by land and sea and air, to pay homage to the Christ Child.

The liner Empress of Britain docked at Haifa today with 250 Christmas pilgrims who will reach Bethlehem before midnight. Many are coming long distances afoot.

Clear stars linger over the court where the throngs have gathered since early evening. Restless and noisy, these weary travelers wait for the beginning of the longed-for celebration.

PROCESSION MOVES

They form an aisle for the procession. Stately and majestic, it marches through the court toward the low entrance of the church. Each man bows low as he passes through.

Slowly the religious assembly progresses toward the grotto of the Nativity.

As the priests reverently advance toward the brilliantly lighted cavern, a note of mystery, something not of this world, increases until they slowly halt before the manger, adoring this symbol to which they have dedicated their lives.

The congregation raises its voice in the solemn music of an ancient hymn.

British Royalty At Palace Fireside

LONDON, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Like millions of their subjects, King George and Queen Mary of England and their family are spending a homely, old-fashioned fireside Christmas this year.

Amid the intimate surroundings of the royal country mansion at Sandringham, in Norfolkshire, 100 miles from the capital, the King and Queen and most of their children and grandchildren are celebrating the Christmas vacation with a family party.

With them are the Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York and their two children, and the Duke of Gloucester. The Princess Royal, their majesties' only daughter, and her husband and two sons are absent from the family gathering. They are celebrating the event at Harewood House, their Yorkshire home.

Prince George, who had planned to join the Sandringham party, also was absent, confined to his London home with a feverish cold.

The royal party gathered this afternoon in the white drawing room to watch the King and Queen distribute presents from a giant Christmas tree to every servant on the estate.

Tomorrow, after the exchange of presents between the members of the royal family, the party will walk across the grounds of the mansion to the little Sandringham church to attend the divine service.

Student Injured In Fall Recovering

BRYN MAWR, Pa., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—His neck and shoulders in a plaster cast, Donald J. Miller, Jr., 19, Haverford College student of Indianapolis, expects to have a Christmas party all his own.

Miller's neck was broken in a fall from a horizontal bar in the college gymnasium a week ago. Physicians at the Bryn Mawr Hospital said today he has improved steadily and is expected to recover.

MRS. ROOSEVELT SEES RETURN OF 'DUENNA'

Chaperons Now Held More Sympathetic, Companionable

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt sees signs of chaperons returning, "to a limited extent."

In explaining why she thought so, the wife of the President-elect, in an address last night on "Are We Going Back to Chaperons?" said:

"Perhaps it is because chaperons are wiser than they used to be. They do not offer unasked advice; they do not thrust themselves forward. The wise ones are learning to be companionable with youth; to listen, to learn and to be sympathetic with it and to criticize as little as possible, and so a different kind of chaperon is creeping back into society, but whether we have the old system of great strictness or one of complete independence does not really matter.

CHARACTER IMPORTANT

"I have very little faith in outward restrictions. I place all my faith in the individual development of character. Human nature changes very little. If girls and boys grow up in an atmosphere of frankness and fair play and consideration for others, and with a sense of responsibility toward their own families and communities, then they are safe today as they were when I was young.

"It's the old question of character, and chaperons cannot take the place of character."

EDUCATION HELPS

Mrs. Roosevelt said her daughter had twice the freedom that she herself had had "because gradually it had been dawning upon us that all the chaperons in the world could never keep girls and boys from doing foolish things and that there was only one way to help them and that was through education.

Speaking of chaperons in her day, the future First Lady said her recollection was that "when you wanted to be rid of them, somehow or other it could be managed."

Trains Rattle Where Poet Hailed Santa

'DEAD' SON HIS MOTHER'S GIFT

KENTON, O., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A son of Mrs. S. H. Runyon, once mourned as dead, will help her celebrate Christmas.

The son is George F. Romy, who, at 23, was known as the youngest steamship captain on the Pacific Ocean.

Sixteen years ago he left his home in Rich Hill, Mo., to attend the United States Military Academy at West Point. Three years later he left school to work on a San Francisco-Honolulu merchant ship, of which he became captain.

He retired a short time ago and made his home in Des Moines, Ia.

Mrs. Runyon had not heard from him for 13 years. In 1929 Romy's father had a court declare the son legally dead so he might collect on a $1,000 life insurance policy.

Pinchot Christmas Card Stand Attacked

A letter to Gov. Pinchot, attacking his and his wife's stand in not sending Christmas cards this year, was mailed to Harrisburg yesterday by a Pittsburgh engraver.

The writer especially regretted Mrs. Pinchot's saying that very little of the sum used in buying cards would go to employing [illegible]. He said that engravers, printers, stationers, paper manufacturers, sales people and artists had a vital interest in the Christmas card business.

Scene of Moore's Writing Is Busy Spot in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Down around West Twenty-second street, elevated trains will clatter as usual tonight and John Poulos will shine and repair the shoes of hurrying passersby — all oblivious that 110 years ago Clement Moore sat in his country home there and wrote the immortal poem which begins, "Twas the Night Before Christmas."

A huge apartment house now covers the spot in Twenty-third street on which the Moore house stood, but the center of what once was the big Moore homestead is a few hundred feet away—at about what is now Twenty-second street and Ninth avenue.

On one corner here is a Chinese laundry. On another is a dry cleaning shop, on the third is a vacant store, and on the fourth stands the shoe shop of John Poulos. An elevated railway runs down Ninth avenue.

On the soil which now lies buried many feet beneath the city's streets, Moore used to raise prime peaches. He also raised turkeys. It was just after having been out to his yards to procure one of these to send to a neighbor for Christmas that he returned to his study and wrote "A Visit from St. Nicholas."

The lines were repeated for John Poulos as an elevated train roared by. He asked:

"What's that? No, I guess I never heard of anybody by that name round this neighborhood.

"But those are pretty lines. I'll take them home. We are going to celebrate tonight."

In Trinity Cemetery on Washington Heights, Upper Manhattan, there will gather late today at a grass-covered grave, persons who know the poet by his works. This gathering is an annual occurrence on Christmas eve.

Flowers will be strewn upon the little mound; some one chosen will recite the lines of St. Nick's Christmastide visit, and heads will be bowed in silent prayer.

Humane Society Santa to Horses And Owners

DETROIT, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—One hundred horses and their owners were guests of the Michigan Humane Society at a Christmas party yesterday at the society's shelter.

There was a Christmas tree and everything, including hay and oats for the horses and sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee for their owners.

Before the horses went back to their life work of hauling coal, ice and junk wagons, each was presented with a blanket, a half bushel of oats and a half bale of hay.

A Visit From St. Nicholas

By CLEMENT CLARKE MOORE

'Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads;
And Mamma in her 'kerchief and I in my cap,
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap,
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from the bed to see what was the matter;
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters and flung up the sash.

The moon on the breast of the new fallen snow
Gave the lustre of midday to objects below;
When what to my wondering eyes should appear
But a miniature sleigh and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver, so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name:
"Now, Dasher! Now, Dancer! Now, Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet! On, Cupid! On, Donder and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch! To the top of the wall!
Now dash away! Dash away! Dash away all!"

As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly
When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky,
So up to the house-top the coursers they flew,
With the sleigh full of toys, and St. Nicholas, too.
And then, in a twinkling, I heard on the roof
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof;
As I drew in my head and was turning around,
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound;
He was dressed all in furs from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he looked like a peddler just opening his pack.

His eyes—how they twinkled! His dimples how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry!
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard of his chin was as white as the snow;
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath;
He had a broad face and a little round belly
That shook, when he laughed, like a bowlful of jelly.
He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf,
And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself;
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head,
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread.

He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And filled all the stockings, then turned with a jerk,
And laying his fingers aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose;
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew, like the down off a thistle,
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,
"Merry Christmas to all, and to all a good-night."

Holiday Feasts, Parties Provided for Needy

Thousands Get Help As City Cheers Up For Christmas

Thousands of needy men, women and children will receive food, clothing and toys in the Pittsburgh district today and tomorrow.

Plans have been made by the Salvation Army to provide three meals to 10,000 at its headquarters on the Boulevard of the Allies, and its branches in Bellevue, Lawrenceville, North Side and McKeesport. Three thousand will have a feast from proceeds of the Father Cox Relief Fund, an equal number being fed at the Helping Hand.

Two hundred children received food, clothing and toys from the Emerson Club of Sacred Heart Church at its annual entertainment in Guild Hall, 5920 Center avenue, last night. The Downtown Y. M. C. A. was host at the same time to many newsboys.

Fifty Christmas baskets were given to needy and disabled veterans today by members of the Greater Pittsburgh Chapter, No. 8, Disabled American Veterans of the World War. Distribution of the baskets was made at the chapter club rooms, 4408 Liberty avenue. Oscar Yeager was in charge of the relief committee.

The Cot Club of the West Penn Hospital, which has been playing the Santa role 37 years, will distribute Christmas gifts tomorrow morning. Thirty-two children will enjoy the party in the sun parlor, while those more seriously ill will get their presents in bed.

A Christmas entertainment will be held tonight by the Improvement of the Poor in the organization's buildings in Duquesne way and Webster avenue. More than 1,000 gifts will be distributed.

Members of Syria Temple Automobile Club were hosts to members and their children at a children's Christmas party last night at Syria Mosque. A pageant, "A Christmas Fantasy," was presented. Dancing until midnight concluded the program. Santa Claus distributed candy to the children after the presentation.

Awaiting Reunion, Dies Buying Gifts

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—H. B. Proudfit, 60, overjoyed at the prospect of seeing his son after a separation of several years, fell dead in the shopping district yesterday, his arms laden with presents.

He suffered a fatal heart attack while purchasing gifts after his son had telephoned him from San Diego to announce he had just arrived from South America.

Jeanette Denies She'll Wed Maurice

CAP D'ANTIBES, France, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Jeanette MacDonald, American screen favorite who will occupy Maurice Chevalier's villa at Cannes during a holiday on the Reviera, had denied reports today she would marry the French comedian. She said:

"I already have one fiance."

FREED FOR YULE WITH HIS DOG

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Because Lonnie Williams, 17, liked his dog, Fritz, so well he couldn't bear to see him unprovided for, boy and dog are going to spend Christmas together.

Charged with driving an automobile without an operator's license, the boy was sentenced on December 16 to 10 days in jail. He asked Magistrate John F. Cozens to give him a little time to find somebody to look after his dog while he was in jail, and Cozens gave him a week.

Lonnie reappeared yesterday and the magistrate asked whether he had arranged for the care of his dog. He answered:

"Yes, sir. I'm ready to go now."

Said the magistrate:

"I just can't send anyone away who's as fond of animals as you are. Go back to your dog and have a merry Christmas. You're discharged."

'Casements' Ready For John D.'s Party

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Dec. 24.—(Universal.)—Servants have been working busily preparing Casements, the winter home of John D. Rockefeller, Sr., for the Christmas party the aged financier will give Tuesday to 200 friends and neighbors.

This is an annual event here. The program usually includes carols, quartet selections, readings and the distribution of gifts to the guests.

WOMAN 'LIFER' PARDONED

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A Christmas gift awaited for years will be presented Mrs. Bessie Shackford, 49, tomorrow. It is liberty. She will leave New Hampshire State Prison to begin life anew with her parents and children.

Mrs. Shackford has been granted a conditional pardon from a life sentence by Gov. John G. Winant.

For several years Mrs. Shackford annually had requested liberty. Each time the plea was denied. This holiday, discouraged by repeated failures, she decided not to apply.

Warden Charles G. Clarke walked into the prison kitchen yesterday, and, smiling at his charge, informed her that on Christmas Day she could walk into the world she left nearly a score of years ago.

Nineteen years ago Mrs. Shackford was accused of killing her husband, a farmer many years her senior. A hired man also was involved. He received a shorter term.

Thieves Leave Lone Chicken for Owner

The chicken thieves who broke into John Lang's hen house in Chestnut street, Munhall, last night, knew it was the Christmas season, and apparently had a thought for Lang's Christmas dinner.

There were 21 chickens in the coop. They left one.

COL. HOOKER DIES

Leader of Marines In Shanghai Succumbs

SHANGHAI, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Col. Richard S. Hooker, commander of the 4th Regiment of the United States Marines, stationed in the Shanghai international settlement, fell dead today of heart failure.

He collapsed in the drawing room of his residence while playing with his children, soon after returning home from a Christmas shopping tour.

His death plunged the regiment into mourning in the midst of elaborate Christmas celebrations, all of which were canceled.

Col. Hooker came to China in October, 1930. During the Sino-Japanese hostilities in February in Shanghai, he played an important part in the defense of the international settlement.

PUP MOURNS BROTHER

JACK CONNOLLY, 6

Pining for Missing One, Toy Terrier Won't Eat

"Crackers," a fox terrier pup, refused to eat his lonely bone today because "Spotty," his brother and constant companion in their nine months of existence, had run away. Meanwhile "Spotty's" master, Jack Connolly, 6, remained inconsolable.

"Spotty" got out of the Connolly residence, 211 South Neville street, Thursday noon and has not been seen since. He is a toy fox terrier with white and brown markings. A reward is offered for his return.

"Spotty" and "Crackers" were an uncle's present to Jack and his brother, Larry, 3. The boys and dogs were inseparable playmates. Now "Spotty's" disappearance has cast a gloom over their holiday season.

Perhaps "Crackers" feels it worst of all. He won't eat. And "seems to cry."

NATIVITY TO BE CELEBRATED IN CHURCHES TOMORROW

SPECIAL MUSIC TO FEATURE SERVICES

Elaborate preparations for Christmas have been made in all churches throughout the Pittsburgh district. Many Catholic churches are holding midnight masses. Nearly all Lutheran and Evangelical Lutheran churches are greeting the birthday of Christ with early morning services, many by candlelight. Carol singing and musical programs will be featured.

The poor will not be forgotten. Many churches are holding special White Gift Services morning and evening. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto me," is the biblical text, to be remembered at Christmas, ministers urge.

CHILDREN'S PROGRAM

Because Christmas is the season of the Nativity, many churches express praise in the form of children's programs, pageants, tableaux, religious plays and cantatas. Carol singing is a universally popular expression of Christmas joy among young people in the churches.

Trinity Cathedral will present "A Pageant of the Christmas Mystery" at 5:10 p. m. tonight and tomorrow night. Music has been taken from "The Babe of Bethlehem" and from "Childe Jesus." More than 125 people from the Choir and Choral Society comprise the cast.

TO GIVE PAGEANT

The annual Christmas Sunday School program with a pageant by young people will be presented at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Mt. Zion Lutheran Church, South Evaline street.

A pageant, "The Birth of Our Saviour," will be presented by young people of the Methodist Protestant Grace Church, Sharpsburg, at 7:45 p. m. tomorrow. A musical service will be held at 11 a. m. with a sermon, "The Prophetic Carol," by the Rev. O. W. Bolton, pastor.

In the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, East End, a pageant, "In the Light of the Star," will be given by young people at 8 p. m. At 11 a. m. the Brotherhood Bible Class, with its band, will conduct an annual Christmas "Carol Sing," going through the East Liberty district, visiting the sick and shut-ins. The Rev. M. B. Fuller will tell "The Christmas Story" at the morning service.

NATIVITY PLAY

"The Golden Legend," a Nativity play based on the poem by Henry Longfellow, will be presented with a cast of 50 young people in the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church at 7:45 p. m. tomorrow. The Rev. W. S. Boyd will act as narrator. At the morning service, a program of Christmas music will be presented by the chorus choir under the direction of Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell. The pastor will speak on "Unto Us a Child Is Born," and the sacrament of baptism will be administered to infants.

A Christmas cantata will be sung at Denny Methodist Episcopal Church, Ligonier street, at 11 a. m. tomorrow, under the direction of Charles M. Tea. Young people of the Lawrenceville, Arsenal, Bloomfield and Garfield districts have been invited.

Mt. Lebanon Church Plans Song Service

The Mt. Lebanon Presbyterian Church, Washington and Castle Shannon roads, will devote its Christmas morning service almost entirely to music, furnished by a 15-voice choir, piano, organ, violin and 'cello. The program will consist of carols and anthems. The service will start at 11 o'clock.

'Spinoza' Subject Of Dr. Goldenson

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson will speak on "The Ethical and Religious Teachings of Spinoza" at the services of the Rodef Shalom Congregation at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Dawn Message

THE REV. H. P. ECKHARDT

Pastor Eckhardt, who will deliver his message, the "Good News of Christmas," at dawn services tomorrow at St. Andrew's Church, Center avenue.

'NATIVITY' PLAY TO BE GIVEN

Christmas music will prevail at both morning and evening services in the North Avenue Methodist Church tomorrow.

Elsie Breese Mitchell, soprano soloist and director of music, has arranged the program. Edna M. Sharpe is organist.

In the evening, a pageant, "The Nativity," adapted and arranged from the "Golden Legend" by Anna T. Law, will be presented with the chorus choir singing the musical setting, the Rev. W. S. Boyd, pastor of the church, will serve as narrator.

DAWN SERVICES TO USHER IN CHRISTMAS

Many Protestant churches in the Pittsburgh district are celebrating the advent of Christmas with morning services by candlelight at dawn. At 7 a. m. tomorrow trumpeters will usher in Christmas Day with carols in front of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, Center and Morewood avenues. Then will follow a musical program by candlelight and a message, "The Good News of Christmas," by the Rev. H. P. Eckhardt, pastor.

At 6 a. m. in Emanuel Lutheran Church, Bellevue, a musical program will be given.

Christmas Matins at 5:30 a. m. in the Gustavus Adolphus Lutheran Church, Friendship and Evaline streets, will be preceded by carol singing by the choir at 5:15 a. m.

Services will be held at 6 a. m. in the following churches: Emanuel's Lutheran, Bellevue; Mt. Calvary Evangelical Lutheran, McKees Rocks; Pittsburgh Evangelistic Temple, Union avenue, and Mt. Zion Evangelical Lutheran, Perrysville avenue. At 6:30 a. m. English services will be held in St. Matthew's Lutheran, North avenue, and in First Trinity Lutheran Church, Neville street.

At 7 a. m. these churches will hold services: Concordia Evangelical Lutheran, Brownsville road; Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Brownsville road; Bethlehem Evangelical Lutheran, Excelsior street, and St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran, Eighteenth street. At 8 a. m. communion will be observed in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Wilkinsburg, and at 9 a. m. a bilingual service will be held in Zion's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Thirty-seventh and Bandera streets.

'Christian Science' Topic of Sermons

"Christian Science" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon to be read tomorrow in all Christian Sciences Churches. The golden text will be: "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path."

Midnight Masses to Be Held In City's Catholic Churches

REV. LAWRENCE A. O'CONNELL

Father O'Connell, preaching the Christmas sermon tomorrow morning at uptown Epiphany.

Choirs Will Present Programs at Services

Christmas will be ushered in by a midnight mass tonight in a number of Catholic churches. Preceding the mass at Sacred Heart Church, the Christmas Crib, a sculptured group showing the Birth of Christ, will be blessed with appropriate ceremonies.

In addition to the regular choir and the boys' choir, who will sing Refice's Mass, "Missa Choralis," there will be Christmas carols after the mass by 150 girl choristers in blue medieval costumes and veils. They will sing from the nave of the church with the congregation. Before and after the ceremony there will be short organ programs by Edgar Bowman, organist and choirmaster.

Officers of the mass are the Rev. Thomas F. Coakley, celebrant, assisted by young men of the parish who are preparing for the priesthood; Cornelius Kane, as deacon, and the Rev. Ralph L. Hays, as sub-deacon, with the Rev. Thomas Walsh, Joseph Maryland and Alpheus Reifsnyder as masters of ceremonies. John Ruth and James Hunter Masters will be masters of ceremonies for the choir.

At 11 o'clock Christmas morning, the same solemn mass will be sung, with music by the combined choirs. The Rev. E. Lawrence O'Connell will preach at both masses.

A solemn midnight mass also will be held in the Epiphany Church, with music by the combined junior and senior choirs and a musical program ending with the "Adeste Fideles" as a finale. At 11 a. m. the Magnificent Mass of Vito Carnevali will be given for the first time in Pittsburgh, accompanied by a full orchestra. The Rev. Lawrence A. O'Connell will preach a Christmas sermon.

St. Agnes Catholic Church, Fifth avenue, will present the following musical program under the direction of Albin D. McDermott at midnight today.

Solemn high masses will be held in the St. James Roman Catholic Church, Wilkinsburg, at 5 a. m. and 11 a. m. tomorrow. Christmas carols on the bells will be heard at 4:30 a. m.

COLLEGE CLUB AT CHURCH

The Men's Glee Club of Muskingum College, under the directorship of Prof. Milton F. Rehs, will sing in the Second United Presbyterian Church, North Side, at 11 a. m. tomorrow. Thirty voices will sing sacred numbers. Several Pittsburghers are in the club.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Laing, the pastor, will preach on "Preparing for Christ's Advent." At 7 p. m. a Young People's service will be held. A short address, "What the Babe Found," will be made by the pastor.

FATHER THOMAS F. COAKLEY

Father Coakley, celebrant of the Christmas mass tomorrow morning at Sacred Heart Church.

BISHOP'S MASS IN CATHEDRAL

Pontifical high mass, celebrated by Bishop Hugh C. Boyle, will open the Christmas observance in St. Paul's Cathedral at midnight. There also will be a solemn high mass at 11 a. m. tomorrow with a musical program at both masses by a combined choir of 40 men and 30 boys under the direction of Father Rossini, with J. S. Blonsick at the organ. Traditional Christmas carols will be sung before and after the services by the sanctuary choir boys.

RADIO TO CARRY GREETINGS TO FAR NORTH

Tonight, Yuletide greetings will go forth to the traders, trappers, educators, missionaries, Royal Canadian Mounted Police and explorers in the Arctic and Sub-Arctic regions.

The music and address for the special Christmas broadcast will be presented by the Rev. Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, of Shadyside Presbyterian Church, and the members of his choir.

The service broadcast directly from the church through KDKA and its international short wave unit W8XK beginning at 11:20 o'clock tonight will continue until 11:45 o'clock at which time KDKA will link with the National Broadcasting Company to bring to the receiving sets in millions of homes the chimes of Old Trinity Church, New York.

At 12:10 Christmas morning the KDKA Polar Bears will broadcast 2,000 or more greetings to the dwellers of the Far North, from friends and relatives living in other parts of the world.

PETTY'S TALKS PUBLISHED

At the request of friends of the late Rev. Carl Wallace Petty, former pastor of the First Baptist Church, a series of his sermons, bearing on human traits and experiences, have been collected into a volume entitled, "The Evening Altar."

Originally delivered as radio talks over KDKA as a part of a sacred song program, they were greeted by a flood of letters and inquiries from listeners.

Sermon titles in the collection include, "Memory," "Courage," "Hope," "Faith," "Success," "Fear," "Loyalty," "Fools," "Temptation," "Crosses," "Work," "Brotherhood," "Happiness," "Dreamers," "Insight" and "Commencement." They may be obtained from the offices of the First Baptist Church, Bellefield avenue.

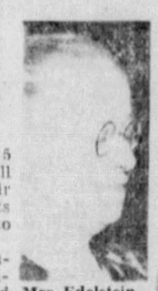
FETE FOR PAIR WED 50 YEARS

Children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren will gather about the festive board at Glyder Hall, Center avenue, tomorrow, and more than 100 guests will join in a reception, to celebrate the golden anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. H. Edelstein, 405 Grove street. All but one of their 29 descendants are expected to be present.

Mr. Edelstein



Mrs. Edelstein

Married in Rumania, the Edelstein's have lived in Pittsburgh 35 years. Mr. Edelstein attributes his and his wife's health to the practice of "early to bed, early to rise," and Mrs. Edelstein's good cooking.

LIVING PICTURES IN EAST END

Christmas Day will be observed in the East End Christian Church with two special services tomorrow. In the morning the Sunday School and congregation will join in living pictures, white gifts for the poor and special music.

Volunteers to Give Cantata Tomorrow

A sacred cantata, "The Fulfillment," will be presented tomorrow evening in the Volunteers of America Church, Sandusky and East North Diamond streets, North Side. The cast will be composed of members of the Volunteers' headquarters staff, headed by Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Frank H. Wise, regional commanders.

There will be special music, directed by Capt. Edna Super, pianist, in which the orchestra and mixed chorus will take part.

'Greatest Gift' Sharpsburg Topic

The Rev. K. L. Cramer, of the First Baptist Church, Sharpsburgh, will preach on "God's Greatest Gift" at 10:45 a. m. tomorrow. At 7:45 p. m. he will speak on "The Pharisee and Publican at Worship."

FATHER COX SENDS GREETINGS

Heart of People Not Cold, Friend of Jobless Says

Father Cox, of Old St. Patrick's, has asked the Sun-Telegraph to carry his Christmas greetings to his thousands of friends who read this newspaper, many of whom he would otherwise be unable to reach at this time. He said:

"The cloud of dire depression hovers over thousands and thousands of homes, yet we have much to be joyous for on this holiday. The heart of the people has not gone cold—we are feeding the hungry and clothing the destitute. We know not where tomorrow's food for this woe-begone army of jobless and their dependents is coming from, but there is a warmth in the heart of every man, woman and child who has not been deluged by this cataclysm and it is the continued warmth of this big heart that will continue to furnish the daily bread for the less fortunate.

"The people in Pittsburgh, regardless of their church affiliations, who have it to give, have been loyal and liberal to me in the big job I have undertaken and I know that they will continue to consider it a priv

First thrills are best;
First kisses the sweetest,
First moments the fleetest;
And all of the rest
Is just anti-climax,
For that's the way time acts
To rob all of leisure
And life of its zest.

First love's the crest,
And first folly bravest;
While first sorrow's gravest—
But all of the blest
Hours that follow
Are somewhat more hollow:
For plain honest pleasure,
The first thrills are best!

One of the well-known movie stars, who is getting slightly passay, was swishing all over a hiccup-juice joint in the Furious Fifties the other ante meridian. She began delivering a tiresome monologue about herself to a dozen bored brandy-and-soda assassinators.

"Isn't she scintillating?" someone commented. "She's acting better before these dozen people than she ever did in any of her pictures."

"She's delighted," meow'd another cat, "because this is the largest audience she's played to in years!"

Newspaperman Stuff

They tell it about one of the better known syndicated paragraphers. A Portland (Ore.) Sunday editor had been deleting the drool from the columnist's stuff for years. This training qualified the editor in his own right. So one day when the syndicated material failed to arrive on time—the editor ground out a full column in the same style from his "rural" desk in Oregon—and nobody knew the difference!

Imagine then, says a Portland reader, the surprise and consternation in the editorial rooms when the columnist's fan mail quadrupled—many of the fans commenting favorably on the remarkable observations and lavishing their praises on his word portrait of the real New York!

"Dear Winchell," writes William Williams, of Oak Park, Ill., "here are my impressions after one day in New York. The taxi men don't honk horns around the Waldorf at night. Newsboys don't yell their papers from midtown corners. I had to go into a hotel lobby to buy one. The streets are cleaner than any I've seen. Longchamps is the only restaurant I ever dined at where I was charged for a tip. Bituminous coal is not burned in New York proper, therefore no smoke. And all in all the quietest, most cultured and inspiring city I have ever seen."

'Cynara' Film Well Done In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Mr. Seibel

Walt Disney's admirers will find the finest of his "Silly Symphonies" in full color at the Penn Theater this week—"Santa's Workshop," with all the latest devices by which the good saint of Christmas manufactures the toys he distributes to good boys and girls. Full of imagination, humor and dramatic zip, this colored comic almost makes you forget "Cynara," which is the big picture.

But "Cynara" must not be forgotten. It is one of the better films that Hollywood is turning out. Based on the play in which Philip Merivale made a great hit—a play about a husband who was "faithful after his fashion," it affords a magnificent opportunity for Ronald Colman and Kay Francis, who plays the wife. There is also beautiful acting by the woman who plays the shopgirl—is it Viva Tattersall?

There are few deviations from the play—those made by the scenario are in the direction of scenic embellishment—like the boat ride on a lovely lake. It would not be fair to compare or contrast the film with the play, as the values of the stage version depended largely upon the characterizations and the subtle shyness of Merivale. Taken merely as a picture, "Cynara" is a fine sample of honest endeavor to provide artistic screen entertainment. King Vidor did well with the direction, and there are some flashes of photography that are superb.

There's a delightfully idiotic comedy about the adventures of an auto and a street car, also a series of vivid news pictures that show what a thrilling year 1932 has been—but the big kick of the show is that Walt Disney colored cartoon of "Santa's Workshop." The youngsters will dream about that.

BETTE DAVIS, FIRST NATIONAL PLAYER, TYPIFIES THE FILM COLONY'S YULETIDE GREETING TO ALL

Stanley Film Has Good Acting

By MANUEL M. GREENWALD

Methodical and business-like in treatment as well as theme, "The Match King," lighting up the Stanley screen for Christmas week, has as its principal feature the cameo portrait of Mr. Warren William.

Here is the inside expose of the diplomatic liar who, through artifices of shady nature, rises from a street cleaner to a financial monarch under the foundation of match sticks. His calculating calmness with men and cool catering to the vanities of women entangle him in huge incomes and equally gigantic debts.

The living photograph of this trapped tiger of fortunes is clear and vivid. "The Match King" is thus more stimulating to the brain than to the emotions, for the impression of shrewdness is persistently dominating over his conscious romances. These are many and varied items in his structure for success, and, like them, they end in disappointing downfall.

The picture has about it a tone of ambition and frustration, distinct moral value and a lucid interpretation of the tragic human being after whom the film is so obviously patterned. The acting of Mr. William, and his subordinates, is restrained and thorough, at all times taking into consideration the serious study "The Match King" presents.

In the final analysis, it leaves a taste of slow, quiet reflection unhindered by overflowing love interest or the wiles of women.

As an added attraction the film of the University of Southern California-Notre Dame football game is unusually thrilling.

Miss Francis Draws 'Em

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 24.—One of the little dramas of Hollywood has been the showing made by Kay Francis in her Warner Brothers pictures. She was figured to be the least important of the stars acquired in that famous raid on Paramount, but — surprise — the boxoffice says differently.

Plans are afoot now to team the tall, slim star with Warren William. What is more, their vehicle threatens to start a new film cycle. It is the Franch play, "100 Percent."

* * *

Latest fad in Hollywood is to give showers for the stars who have adopted babies. Colleen Moore got one up for Marian Nixon . . . Dorothy Lee and Marshall Duffield are dating it again, they were dancing at the Kate Smith testimonial in the Cocoanut Grove. Helene Costello was out again, too, with Arthur Lubin . . . And later on, at the Wampas baby star dance, Bill Rankin was paying court to Lillian Bond. He says they're engaged, but the lady wouldn't confirm it.

* * *

The other day Anita Louise received a gown from a local shop. When trying to put it on, she found an autograph book with a note:

"I am a wrapper at the store. Will you sign this and mail it back to me?"

From the growing bundle of toys at the Chaplin studio, it looks as if Charlie were planning a big Christmas for his two sons. The comedian sees them once or twice every week now . . . Director Roy Del Ruth figured out that he spent $1,900 for Christmas presents last year. This December he is giving a check for this amount to a local charity, and in the name of his mother.

1932 Thrills On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Outstanding thrills of 1932, including the year's most sensational news events, are presented in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, with graphic descriptions by the Globe Trotter. Included in the pictures are the $2,000,000 fire at Coney Island, the sentencing of Al Capone to the federal penitentiary; Amelia Earhart's flight over the Atlantic with former Mayor Jimmy Walker welcoming her back to New York; the eruption of Hawaii's noted volcano, Kileuea; the Democratic national convention, and the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt; sensational crashes at the Indianapolis auto classic; the assassination of President Doumer of France; the eclipse of the sun, and the war in China.

In connection with the passage of the 3.2 beer bill in the House of Representatives, Representative La Guardia, of New York, speaks for beer and Mrs. Florence Kahn, of California, predicts wine later, and finally the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Brooklyn federal agents are shown hurling hundreds of bottles of confiscated home brew against a brick wall.

The first demonstration of a tiny submarine built by Simon Lake to explore the oceans' beds, is presented.

Scenes from Mexico City show the celebration of the Virgin of Guadeloupe.

Sir John Simon, spokesman for the British government, and Norman Davis, representing the United States, talk on the signing of the Five-Power pact at the disarmament conference in Geneva.

Robinson Is Warner Star

By MARY SHINE

The gold and silver rush days of Colorado in 1876 came roaring onto the screen in the Warner yesterday, in "Silver Dollar," in which you see the growth of the city of Denver, and the rise and fall of Yates Martin, played by Edward G. Robinson. He should have remained a miner, but like Caesar, he was too ambitious.

Yates becomes mayor of every mining town, lieutenant-governor of the state of Colorado, and finally, for 30 days, United States Senator. He portrays most vividly a gross, uneducated man, ultra susceptible to flattery, who, by a fluke, makes a fortune in silver and buys his way to the top, only to lose everything with the establishing of the gold standard. Being an ignorant man, he can't understand how it happened. Silver has been his god that failed him, and Colorado's most glamorous figure becomes a pitiful derelict.

Aline MacMahon, whose star is surely in the ascendant, rises a bit higher in "Silver Dollar," in fact her acting is much finer than that of the rest of the cast, as she plays the role of Yates' pioneer wife. Bebe Daniels is the golden-haired go-getter who lures Yates away from his wife and child by the most blatant flattery.

Roscoe (Fatty Arbuckle) makes a most unsuccessful "come-back" attempt in "Hey Pop," a comedy.

Broadways Of the World — All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

MAJESTIC HOTEL, TUNIS, NORTH AFRICA.—Well, I have seen the night life of Tunis. I could have saved myself the trouble. It's the same old synthetic junk that I'll probably find the world over. I think I'll blow this part of the world tomorrow and hit out for Monte Carlo and Paris. Even if nothing happens, at least the names sound exciting.

I've purposely saved the night life angle of this town for the end of my visit because I had a hunch it would be pretty much as it was. After all, when you're in a spot that affords you nothing during the day, what can you expect at night? The answer is plenty—in some places. But not in Tunis, unquestionably the best in Tunis.

Precisely at 11 o'clock, Abe, my Arab guide, called for me at the hotel. I haven't told Abe that I'm leaving yet. It's not a good policy to tell a guide or a hotel exactly when you're leaving. If you do, the strangest bills and people suddenly rise up from nowhere. And I don't like surprises, outside of Texas Guinan.

"Abe," I said, as I struggled into the oldest suit I could find, "where are you taking me first? I want the best place in town; we'll take in the bad ones later."

He nodded.

"Then we will go to the Grand Ecart," my guide replied. "The music there is soft and alluring. They have many charming women. It is to the Grand Ecart that the very best people always go. Yes, you will like the atmosphere of the Grand Ecart."

I paused in my dressing and looked dubiously at the old suit.

"If it's as nice as that, Abe," I asserted, "maybe I'd better put on my tuxedo. I didn't know the joints were as swell as that over here. What do you think?"

The guide hesitated.

"Well," he replied finally, "it really doesn't make much difference what you wear. But please do me a favor and carry your gun. I'll feel much safer."

I gulped, took off my clean shirt and put on an old one.

"I get it, Abe," I said. "The music is alluring, the women are charming, it's the best place in Tunis, the atmosphere is marvelous—but you advise me carry a gun. What's the big idea?"

He smiled a very crooked grin.

"It's because," he returned, "we try to make it as much as possible like New York."

I didn't like that crack . . .

Well, you probably have a rough idea of the Grand Ecart without any description from me. Up one flight of an old staircase that groaned under each footstep. Pay two francs immediately to check your hat and coat. Filth on the curtains. Filth on the floor. Filth everywhere.

Inside, no carpets of any kind anywhere. A smallish room with a so-called dance floor in the center. On the left side, a bar at which the men who do not wish to sit down may buy cheaper drinks than they could at a table. Tables around the dance floor with tablecloths that must have been in active service since the war. And on the right side, the orchestra.

The orchestras in these spots! They're not bad, my friends, they're brutal. Here was a six-piece combination—and each one of the six boys was strictly out for himself. So far as harmony was concerned, the six of them might just as well have been in different rooms. They were terrible, and yet they were with my check. Because it was on the table, I had had one bottle of alleged wine. And the check called for slightly more than $10 in our money. In other words, counting the bottle of wine that the club probably bought for about 40 cents, this place was actually more expensive than the finest club in New York today.

I paid my check. And I turned to my guide.

"Abe," I said, "I'm sorry to disappoint you. But I really want to go. This place is getting on my nerves just a trifle."

Abe drained his glass of wine.

"All right," he replied. "We will go.

I smiled at him as we arose.

"I'm a little surprised," I stated. "I thought you'd insist upon staying for the show. I'd like to wait for it, but I can't."

My guide tossed me a perplexed glance. Then he grinned that crooked grin.

"The gentleman is fooling me again," he cried. "Did you not hear the orchestra play and see the hostesses dance? You just saw the show."

And they claim we have rackets in America! . . .

Stocks Not in Big Supply Despite Market's Look Of Heaviness

Though scrutiny of the tape would hardly tend to convey the impression, it was maintained in usually well informed quarters that stocks, that is the rank and file of speculative favorites, were becoming increasingly hard to buy. The market, it is declared, looks thinner than it really is, perhaps for the reason that the prospect for a certain amount of year-end selling has tended to keep potential buyers on the sidelines. But some of those who have sought to buy stocks have found it necessary to "pay up" for them to use street parlance, that is to bid for issues wanted rather than find offerings of consequence in the market.

If precedent follows, the prospect is for some improvement in stock prices with the lifting of year-end selling in the week between Christmas and New Years. One house thumbing the records back develops the fact that the "market has a unique habit of advancing between Christmas and New Years, having advanced at least moderately during this period in 30 out of the past 31 years." It is pointed out moreover, that the recession from the highs of December 15 now have been rather extensive for a market of the size and character recently experienced.

Normally the volume of money in circulation reaches its peak about this time of the year. This year, however, peak circulation was attained, due to widespread hoarding through the spring, at the time when normally it is lowest, or in the first week of July at $5,775,000,000. Between that time and October 26 there was a contraction of approximately $190,000,000 to $5,584,000,000 and since then expansion has been much below the normal rate. The current total at $5,730,000,000 indicates a rise of $146,000,000 from the low point, and leaves the aggregate about the same as reported this week last year. The week brought a rise of $65,000,000, compared with an average increase of $151,000,000 in the last three years, indicating large volume of funds already out has reduced the call for funds at this time.

Brisk covering has taken place in Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s, due next March on the news that upward of 82 per cent of the face amount of the issue outstanding had been deposited under the refinancing plan worked out by the company for meeting the maturity. A bulge of some 4 points was registered in the issue and the stamped certificates, though other bonds of the road did not experience much in the way of sympathetic strength. The plan calls for payment of 50 per cent in cash, 10 per cent immediately on deposit of the bonds, and the balance in new general mortgage 5 per cent bonds due 1996.

Loadings of the Atchison Railway system this week continued their seasonal downward trend though not at so rapid a rate as last week, when loadings were affected to some extent by cold weather. Loadings this week are down about 5.5 per cent while in the full week ended December 17 the seasonal decrease was 2,134 cars or 9.5 per cent. In that week loadings were 20,230 cars, a decrease of 18.8 per cent from a year ago. Atchison's loadings for the year to date show a decrease of about 21 per cent.

Otis Elevator Company during the current year is feeling increasingly the effects of the continued decline in building activity. The one bright spot is the relatively good amount of contracts being booked for governmental work. Although the company recently has been receiving a better volume of inquiries as compared with some months ago, no increase in actual sales is as yet materializing.

Foreign sales are holding up considerably better than domestic business. Current indications are that Otis earnings for 1932 may enable the company to show as much as 25 cents a share on its 2,000,000 shares of common stock after allowing for preferred dividends.

TECHNOCRATS VEERING TO 'BULL' SIDE

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The nation-wide faddist interest in technocracy has put highly theoretical economic discussions on the front page.

The newest quirk is the effort of insiders in technocracy to give their movement a bullish, rather than a bearish, connotation.

Originally the meistersingers of scientific movement emphasized that the present system would break down completely in another year or so unless certain adjustments were made.

Mr. Rukeyser

This led to protest from conservative engineering and economic quarters who asked that the apostles of doom show the evidence for their dire predictions.

PROMISE NEW ERA

Somewhat in an opera bouffe spirit, men are now being required to put themselves on record as in favor of technocracy or agin' it.

The latest communique from the technocratic front hints that technocracy is really bullish. In a statement, Howard Scott, director of technocracy, declares:

"Technocracy points out that this continent has no cause for gloom or fear of chaos, but that we must face the inconvenience of change—that this continent today stands on the threshold of a new era of well-being; that is to say, a more efficient conversion of available energy and an increase in total energy converted, which makes possible an increased standard of living. The high road to this new era can be one of orderly progression under technological control."

If you leave out the mathematical allusions, this doctrine is not far from the viewpoint of other progressive economic students, who here for some time recognized that with better management in the larger and superior distribution of income there could be under technological improvement already made a wider diffusion than ever before in history of the good material things of life. Many think we are now going through the growing pains incidental to passing from an economy based on surpluses.

CLAIM LACKS PROOF

Improved technology under efficient management and planning certainly ought not to be looked upon as an evil visitation. As a matter of fact, the goal of the economist is to achieve a given volume of production with the same human effort. The economist recognizes that the ultimate sanction for business rests on social utility.

The claim of the technocrats that the price system is doomed lacks convincing proof.

Unquestionably the 10 years' research known as "The Energy Survey of North America" contains valuable specific data concerning the advance of the machine, but the interpretation of the social meaning of the labor-saving machine is one for statesmen and economists, not simply for technicians.

The real problem is man's capacity to turn the machine into an iron slave for his own benefit. To the extent that the machine replaces man, man is released for cultural work and for service activities, which presumably cannot be mechanized. Obviously, it is socially desirable to distribute the fruits of production widely.

Brunswick-Balke Reduces Capital

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—The New York Stock Exchange has received notice from Brunswick-Balke Collender Company that the authorized preferred stock has been reduced to 40,000 shares and common stock to 500,000 shares. Also that the capital represented by outstanding common stock has been reduced to $4,500,000.

Wholesale and Jobbing Trade Conditions

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Tabloid review of wholesale and retail business conditions as reported to Bradstreet's this week from the following centers, on the basis of comparisons with conditions in the same areas in the corresponding week last year:

	Whole. and Job. Trade	Retail Trade	Mfg. and Industry	Collections
Pittsburgh	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Chicago	Fair	Fair	Quiet	Slow
Cleveland	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Detroit	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow

Omaha	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
St. Louis	Quiet	Fair	Quiet	Slow
St. Paul	Quiet	Fair	Quiet	Slow
Baltimore	Fair	Fair	Quiet	Slow

Pittsburgh—Department store trade slightly below 1931; industry at virtual standstill, with most plants closed for the holidays; coal retailing at exceedingly low prices; jobbers in holiday lines find fairly active fill-in market.

Chicago—Jobbers' holiday volume 10 to 15 per cent above 1931, due to last-minute rush orders from retailers; Christmas trade exceeds expectations; steel industry encouraged by increased automobile production; activity at coal mines brisk.

Cleveland—Christmas trade far behind 1931 with purchases confined to necessity items; steel mills on 15 per cent production basis; soft coal sales on upgrade, ravons making best showing in textiles; truck industry continues to make gradual gains.

Detroit—Department store holiday volume compares favorably with 1931 dollar value off; automobile industry begins extensive production of 1933 models with consequent improvement to employment; smaller factories closing for holiday and inventory period.

COVERING GIVES STOCKS TILT UPWARD

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Pre-holiday covering in a dull market lifted stocks slightly in the early trading today.

With the ticker almost at a standstill, fractional gains were recorded by Allied Chemical, American Telephone, Corn Products, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific and United Aircraft. The United States Steel shares were steady. Standard Oil of New Jersey sagged slightly.

The freight car loadings report for the week ended December 17 showed a decline of only 4,420 cars, which was but a fraction of the usual seasonal recession, and considerably under advance estimates. The favorable showing resulted chiefly from an increase of 25,343 in coal loadings. Miscellaneous loadings were off 19,216 from the previous week, presumably reflecting the year-end letdown in industry.

The plethora of funds seeking only safest short term investment was strikingly reflected in the sale of United States Treasury bills, which went at a discount equivalent to the record low interest rate of .09 of 1 per cent. The offering of three-months bills approximates $100,000,000.

Sterling reacted a little at the opening, with cables quoted at $3.32⅞, off ⅝. The French franc was steady.

Commodity Market Combine Favored

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Members of the Hide, Metal, Silk and Rubber exchanges at separate meetings held during the week, expressed informal approval of the proposed merger into a central exchange. The boards of governors already have signified their approval of the merger.

The proposed name of the consolidated exchanges is "Commodities Exchange, Inc." Combined membership probably will be around 1,000.

Exchange Nominates Officials for 1933

Officers and directors of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange have been renominated for the ensuing year. The election will be held January 3. The officers and directors are: R. S. Richards, president; Samuel Carothers, vice president; William J. Bauer, treasurer, and C. S. McCleary, Marshall R. Barbour and C. H. Bornraeger, directors.

WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Bank clearings show further improvement for the week. Not only was the total well above that of last week, but it was also substantially higher than that of the week before.

Where the clearings total for last week was nearly 40 per cent under that of the corresponding 1931 week, the current total is less than 30 per cent under that of the same week of last year. The improved showing is due in part to the fact that different dates were included in the two weeks. This variation is eliminated in the average daily figures, which show 1932 clearings uniformly under those of 1931 for December, but which also show moderate improvement over the earlier months of the year.

The bank clearings total for this week for the principal cities, as compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., is $4,713,658,000, which is 29.5 per cent under the $6,687,521,000 reported for the corresponding 1931 week. The total of New York City clearings, 30.1 per cent under the 1931 figure, was $3,270,039,000. The principal cities outside of New York City had clearings this week of $1,443,919,000, 26.4 per cent less than they reported at this time last year. For a few of the southern cities, the decline from last year was again less, continuing the recent trend. At Philadelphia there was another increase this week, but the losses in the main are greater at the other large cities, particularly at New York, Boston, Chicago, Detroit and San Francisco.

Figures for leading centers, as compiled by R. G. Dun & Co., showing decreases and one increase as compared with same period a year ago, follow:

In Mayfair

Patricia Pitt

Very gay indeed was the subscription dance last night in the Twentieth Century Club for the benefit of the welfare fund, which was sponsored by the sub-debs, and at which they twinkled the light fantastic with members of the younger school set. It was one of the most festive of the holiday affairs, and the debs' younger sisters looked every bit as lovely as they, in their brilliant gowns. I saw Marnie Hodge, who was one of the sponsors, in vivid violet crepe, with petaled shoulder straps fastened to the decolletage in back with a large clip of brilliants.

Barbara Verner was another of the sponsors, and Evelyn Freeman and Margery Hillman. Their committee all wore white carnations. I saw attractive Mary Gordon in black crepe with an ermine jacket and Analina Beeson in white crepe with a scarlet girdle for accent, and she had a cape forming brief sleeves and a cowl decolletage. White crepe was the choice of Margaretta Oliver, too, and her gown had the square neckline banded in green crepe. Chatting with her before going to the ballroom, was Betsy Evans, in holly berry red velvet.

Mary Curry chose peach crepe with gold embroidery around the cowl neckline, and the Liggett sisters, Betsy, in red rough crepe, and Laura, in gold crepe with brown velvet shoulder bands, were there.

Young Betty Bughman looked very springlike in fern green crepe, and Jane Dowler wore deep blue velvet with a black velvet and white fox wrap. Margret Brill, a post-deb, wore purple moire, and Mary Ottilie Heumann chose rose crepe. Titian-haired Adele Lippincott I saw as she entered the club, wearing white fox. Jean Davison, who was dancing with James Lowry, wore white lace heavily embroidered with sequins, having a many-tiered skirt.

In Fern Green

Scintillating black satin fashioned the gown of Jane Kennedy, and for accent, she wore scarlet velvet gloves. Marian Black, in white lace, having a deep cape. I saw chatting with Clinton Walker, and Jerry Dunn, in black velvet, and Helen Barton, in hyacinth blue pebble crepe combined with purple velvet.

And Betty Dunn looked most attractive, in crisp, foamy white tulle and sequins, with which she wore a knee-length wrap of mistletoe green velvet. As they entered the club I saw two of the patronesses, Mrs. Francis Sellers Guthrie, in black velvet, with a wrap of black velvet and chinchilla, and Mrs. John Freeman, in a gown having the skirt of red satin and the bodice of cream satin, and a lame wrap.

Most folks have hurried home for the Christmas holidays, but a few will be at resorts over holidays. Among them is a group of university folk. James B. Blackburn, professor of law at the University of Pittsburgh, has joined his mother, Mrs. O. A. Blackburn, at Pinehurst, N. C., for the holidays.

Visit in South

Another house guest of the Blackburns is Dr. Judson Crane, also a professor of law at the University of Pittsburgh, and formerly instructor in law at the University of Peiyang, Tientsin, China.

Mrs. Graham Johnston gave a dinner during the past week at the Mid Pines Country Club, Pinehurst, for the R. D. Clemsons, of Middletown, N. Y.

Mrs. Hugh Carter was entertained recently at the resort at a tea by Mrs. Robert L. Eckert, of Amesbury, Mass.

A. C. Speyer and son, A. J. Speyer, are among recent arrivals.

Helene Fortescue Bows to Society In Capital

WASHINGTON, — Stately Mrs. Granville Fortescue, in gown of sapphire blue with metal belt and dark pearl earrings, presented her pretty daughter, Helene, to capital society Wednesday.

It was a very gay young people's party at which Miss Fortescue made her debut. She wore pure white crepe, close-fitting, high-neck finished in double frill of chiffon, low back, with shower bouquet of pink roses.

Her sister, Mrs. Thomas Massie, was gowned in green with orchids and iris corsage. Another sister, Miss Rion, wore light blue.

For the debutante it was a doubly eventful day, for she appeared that night in an intricate tango in the floor show of the Junior Washington Assembly at the Shoreham Hotel.

Christmas Celebration Held by Ben Avon 'Y'

Mothers of Waynesburg Century Club Back Kindergarten

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A group of young Waynesburg mothers, who comprise the Twentieth Century Club, are sponsoring a kindergarter. The object, of course, is to reach the pre-school child, to teach him how to associate with his fellows, how to play co-operatively and to prepare him for regular school work.

The kindergarten, which is just now conducting a drive for pupils, will be operated for the usual school term of nine months. It is being financed by tuition and from benefits given by the club members.

The nursery school is conducted for children from 2 to 4 during the hours between 9 and 11:30, while the children from 4 to 6 attend from 1 to 3:30 in the afternoon.

PARIS HAILS NEW BEIGE COLOR AS ITS FAVORITE FOR SPRING

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 24. — Beige promises to be a big spring color. Already a universal favorite, Paris is finding new ways to make it a color becoming to those few women who found its yellowish cast made their own coloring a bit sallow. The new Paris beiges are lighter than usual, softer in tone and more bluish in cast. They are definitely becoming to women of all types, but especially to blondes.

* * *

BEIGE, WITH accents of brown, is being used by many of the important houses for those models which are designed for the in-between season which precedes the spring fashion openings. Likewise with black, it has a new fashion importance, especially when worn over dresses of all-black.

* * *

TODAY'S SKETCH shows one of the new beige coats and a new black dress. Both are extremely simple in line, but both herald the general style points of the new year.

* * *

THE MOLYNEUX dress, of black crepe de chine, has no touch of color in its entire make-up save the steel buttons which fasten the belt and the collar. The neckline is high and collared, the sleeves long and loose, the waistline normal but well marked. Bias caps, ruffling around the low shoulder line, make the only departure from the lines of the natural figure.

* * *

THE BEIGE wool coat is markedly double-breasted and is fastened with three fabric-covered buttons. The sleeve caps and the unusual bateau collar are of brown seal.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Say, "Babe" Didrikson scaled over another bunch of hurdles yesterday. This time it was the A. A. U.'s that got down on their all fours and she hopped right over them. It didn't take all this messing around and publicity and ballyhoo. They knew at first if she had been paid for the advertisement or if she hadn't. But the minute they saw those gate receipts slipping out of their hands into hers, they did a high jump backwards, that beat one of her front ones. "Babe" has always beat women. This is the first time she has ever entered the male ranks and showed them up. Yours.

WILL.

Will Rogers

P. S.—I told you Mr. Hoover would quit worrying about the debts and leave 'em alone.

WON'T SHIFT LINDY TO INFIELD HOLE

SOME OF THE baseball critics along the main line are using a new angle from which to dope out the Lindstrom deal as one that will be very helpful to the Pirates. Not only does Lindy add a lot of strength to the Bucs as an outfielder, they say, but he will be additionally valuable because he can be turned back into a third baseman again if anything should force the withdrawal of Pie Traynor.

Pie Traynor

However, the using of Lindstrom at third base or any other infield post, even temporarily, is not contemplated by the Pirate officials. There was a time when Freddie was Traynor's nearest rival for the distinction of being rated the best third baseman in baseball, but the local management is convinced that the former Giant is definitely done as an infielder and there is no intention to play him anywhere except in the outfield. Besides, if Traynor has to leave the game for an extended period there will be no lack of a replacement. Pie has an understudy in Wilbur Brubaker who looks like the money and who is a pretty safe bet to be a regular in due time after a little more schooling.

IF THOSE WHO are supposed to be in the know about American League affairs have the right dope on the Washington-St. Louis player trading, the Senators got the better of it by an even wider margin than was apparent on paper at the time.

It is said that in Sam West the Browns got an outfielder with a bad arm, and that in Carl Reynolds they got one who is a mark for a slow ball. Insiders say these weaknesses were discovered last season by the Washington board of strategy and led to the trading.

SINCE ADMITTING THE other day that Pittsburgh is the most improved club in the National League, Frankie Frisch predicts there will be a vast difference in the Pirates' competition with the Cardinals as compared with that of 1932, when the Bucs won 14 out of 22 games.

Frisch bases his prophecy on the belief that in Bill Hallahan, Bill Walker and Jim Mooney, the Cards will have the best group of left-hand pitchers in the senior wheel, and that they will make no end of trouble for the Rovers' southside hitters.

FRISCH IS PUTTING a lot of faith in a combination that looks to outsiders like a very uncertain one. Even Branch Rickey admits that Hallahan, Walker and Mooney are all "if" men. Hallahan and Walker suffered from sore arms last season, leaving their form for 1933 open to doubt, and as for Mooney there is some question as to whether, even in condition, he has the stuff to stay up. For that matter, the St. Louis club as a whole is quite a problem. Rip Collins at first base is the only assured fixture in the infield, with Frisch's position still in doubt. Harnsby a question mark and the effects of Gelbert's injury undetermined, while in the outfield at least one post is wide open.

Ty Cobb

THE SECRET OF Ty Cobb's durability was in his legs, according to Donie Bush, who played on the same team with him for many years. "Ty had the greatest pair of legs in baseball," Bush says. "Do you know that he never complained of a charley horse? And he didn't try to save his legs, either.

"Often I saw Cobb go into second base with one of his pins all doubled up under him. 'It's broken this time, for sure,' I'd gasp. But the words were hardly out of my mouth before Ty would pick himself up, dust himself off, and make ready to steal third."

THE COMING OF Bobby McLean and Ben O'Sickey, noted speed skaters, for a week of racing and record trials on the Duquesne Garden ice, starting next Monday night, recalls to veteran local fans the days when this city was visited by the world's greatest speeders.

Leading professional and amateur stars of their time gave some of their best exhibitions here, the list including Joe Donoghue, John S. Johnson, Johnny Nilsson, Norval Baptie and Edmund Lamy, followed in later years by Morris Wood, Fred Robson, Lot Roe, Art Staff, Roy McWhirter, Elsie Robinson, McLean himself and many others.

SEVEN OF THE amateur speed records for an indoor track with turns, which still stand in ice skating, were made at Duquesne Garden. Back in 1900, Edmund Lamy skated five miles on February 15 in 14 minutes and 55 seconds. Morris Wood did 660 yards in 59 3-5 seconds on February 2, 1904, and set a mark of 37 3-5 seconds for a quarter-mile on February 23, 1907. Lot Roe skated a mile and a half in 4 minutes and 10 seconds on January 29, 1910. Fred Robson covered 60 yards in 6 seconds and 75 yards in 7 4-5 seconds on February 28, 1926, and Art Staff did 1 minute and 13 seconds for a half-mile on March 7, 1917.

IN 18 FOOTBALL games played in the last two seasons only six touchdowns have been scored against Michigan, three of them in the game that was lost to Ohio State last year. The only other teams to back the Wolverines over their last white line in two seasons were Chicago in 1931 and Northwestern and Princeton in 1932.

Michigan's streak in which it has lost only one game in the last 30, while winning 26 and tying three, started with the 14-to-12 victory over Harvard in 1929. Included in the games played over the period of the last three years were 17 with Big Ten teams, of which the Wolverines won all but one.

COMMENT BY MANY boxing critics on the weight advantage of nine and a half pounds which Jimmy McLarnin held over Sammy Fuller in their recent bout, with the observation that McLarnin manages to have the poundage in his favor in most of his matches, brings a protest from Pop Foster, Jimmy's manager.

"Jimmy doesn't fight lighter men from choice," Pop declares. "He is open to meet any one at his weight who is a card. Fuller didn't have to box Jimmy. Nor did any of the others. They took the matches because they thought they could win. If their judgment was at fault, why pick on Jimmy? Let them get Jackie Fields. Any promoter will find it easy enough to make terms with us.

Pop Foster

"HANDICAP MATCHES ALWAYS have been part of the game," Foster continues. "Nobody kicked up any fuss about such matches in the old days. Kid Lavigne, a lightweight, fought Joe Walcott, a welterweight. Walcott himself fought heavyweights. Almost every one of Bob Fitzsimmons fights was a handicap match. Dixon, Ketchel, Attell, Leonard and other great fighters took part in handicap bouts, with nothing said about it. Chocolate gave away weight to Berg, Singer and Canzoneri. Wilde often gave away 10 to 12 pounds. Walker and Rosenbloom still spot opponents weight. If the matchmakers don't want such matches they don't have to ask McLarnin to take them. And nobody can force a lighter boy to box Jimmy." It's an odd argument that Foster offers, for in pointing out the handicap matches of other great fighters, and about which he says nobody kicked, he cites bouts in which the stars mentioned were giving away weight. They were the lighter men. The difference is that McLarnin always happens to be the heavier man.

TITLE CHANCES DEPEND UPON OUTCOME

By TOM BIRKS

The Lawrenceville club's hopes of winning the title in the Central District Soccer League hinges to a great extent on the outcome of this afternoon's game with the dangerous Mt. Lebanon Firemen.

At the inception of the present season, the Firemen, with a strong lineup, ruled as favorites to win the league banner, but a few suspensions early in the season wrecked the club's chances. However, the team has come back nobly, and is very, very anxious to take the Strip booters today. Jimmy Dunlop and his players cannot afford to drop the decision in this tussle, for if the game is lost, the championship chances will be greatly and adversely affected.

FOUR GAMES SCHEDULED

The Lawrenceville-Mt. Lebanon game tops the day's soccer card, with three other contests scheduled in the league.

Union Switch and Signal, 1931 champion, invades Ambridge for a tussle with the Bridgers. This affair looms as a highly interesting one. McKeesport is at home to the crack Clan Douglass eleven and Westinghouse and the German Sport Club battle at Swissvale.

Tomorrow, first and third division teams in the Panhandle League will clash, with Sturgeon meeting Grove, McDonald taking on Steubenville, and Primrose engaging Moon Run in the first division.

In the second division, Pleasant Hills plays at Coraopolis, Shannon Braves meet Coverdale and Leesdale tackles Local Union.

BIG GAME MONDAY

Monday, the South Park field will be the mecca for all soccer fans as the annual clash between the American-born and foreign-born players is staged as the Christmas feature. The American-born players won by a decisive count a year ago, with the result that the foreign-born stars will be out for revenge this year in no uncertain manner.

'33 RYDER CUP PLAY CERTAIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The Professional Golfers' Association has the money and already is considering the men for the Ryder Cup golf matches in England next June. George R. Jacobus, P. G. A. president, in dispelling any doubt as to whether the international golf classic would be held this year, makes this announcement.

Jacobus disclosed that a new method of selection is being used this year, with the 25 heads of the P. G. A. sectional organizations given a voice in the selection of the team. Their opinions will be canvassed by the executive committee and the team selected on the basis of the regional voting. No team, tentative or otherwise, has been selected as yet.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE HOLY THORN—The famous Glastonbury Thorn at the Old Abbey of Glastonbury, England, is believed to have been planted by St. Joseph, of Arithmea, who is said to have landed in Great Britain in the year 63 A. D. on a mission to teach Christianity to the ancient Britons. As the saint landed on Wyrral Hill he planted his staff in the ground and, in accordance with his prophecy, the staff took root and blossomed. It is a fact that the thorn blossoms on January 5 every year, on the day when England celebrated Christmas prior to 1752, according to the old style. After the calendar was reformed, in 1752, and Christmas came 12 days earlier, large crowds would proceed to the Abbey of Glastonbury to watch the reactions of the thorn. As the thorn continued to disregard the change of the calendar, popular clamor became so insistent that the government had to order Christmas celebrated on the old day (January 5) in addition to December 25. SETTING WORLD MARATHON RECORDS AT 48—Arthur Newton, famous British runner, who now makes his home in Montreal, has covered more than 76,000 miles on foot during the last decade. Although Newton was 39 years old before he started running, he now holds world records for road running and turned in his best 24-hour feat at the age of 48, when he covered 152 miles 540 yards at Hamilton, Ont., in 1931. CORRECT TIME—We get our time from the sun, but this heavenly luminary is far from being an accurate timekeeper. Due to the irregular motion of the earth in its orbit, and to the sun's obliquity to the ecliptic, we have been forced to create an artificial sun from whose imagined motions we obain our mean solar time. The true, or, as the astronomers say, the apparent motion of the sun, is from 4 to 16 minutes either behind or ahead of our clock at noon. The only four noons on which mean and true solar time coincide are on April 15, June 15, August 31 and December 24, with a variation of one day on leap years.

TOMORROW—CHRISTMAS 14 TIMES A YEAR.

PITT GRIDDERS LOSE WEIGHT IN WORKOUT

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 24.—Pitt winds up its first week of drill in preparation for the Southern California game in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena today, and all members of the coaching staff are hoping that the weather conditions this afternoon will be similar to those under which the Panthers worked yesterday.

The appearance of the Arizona sun in all its glory yesterday did more to boost Pitt stock in the coming battle than anything that might have happened except a smallpox epidemic among the Southern California tackle department.

There were more pounds lost by the Panthers on the University of Arizona practice field yesterday than at any time since the gates at Camp Hamilton swung shut on the Pitt team. The hard work, coming after a light session in the morning, which in turn followed some horseback riding, filled the lobby of the El Conquistador Hotel with a lot of muscle-sore athletes last night.

Now that the sun has come out again here, the Coast people have gone into a decline, for they have been pulling all sort of strings to get Pitt out there ahead of schedule. Pitt authorities, however, have refused to interfere with Sutherland's plans, and any change will be ordered by him.

JOCK DISSATISFIED

In Los Angeles, three to one odds are being offered on the Trojans, with little Pitt money in sight. All the secrecy in the Pitt camp has impressed the few Los Angeles critics who made the long jaunt out to greet the Panthers, with the seriousness of the Pittsburgh expedition, but the experts still refuse to see any glimmer of hope for the Gold and Blue cause.

Although reluctant to commit himself, Coach Sutherland seemed displeased with the defense he has molded to stop the Trojans. Immediately after leaving the field he discussed the situation with Bill Kern, who scouted Southern California against Notre Dame.

Two teams were alternated in opposing the third string which ran the Trojan plays. Reports reaching the outside were that the defenders stopped the running attack, but not to Sutherland's entire satisfaction.

TROJANS GET REST

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The reserves took the brunt of yesterday's workout as Coach Howard Jones sent his University of Southern California gridsters through their last football drill of the week in preparation for the game with Pittsburgh at the Rose Bowl, January 2.

Today and Christmas will constitute the Trojan team's vacation, with much work ahead the early part of the final week.

Jones spent much time yesterday with his third-string players, particularly two substitute quarterbacks, Garland Matthews and Haskell Wotkyns.

While the first and second squads ran through signals, the remainder of the 37 players, all of whom reported this morning in good condition, were worked on defense against hypothetical Pitt plays.

The Trojan board of strategy is somewhat up in the air about what to expect from the Panthers in the way of formations. Cliff Hurd, who has spent most of his autumns of recent years watching Coach Pop Warner's Stanford elevens, dragged out a notebook full of Warner formations and set up some possible plays from these, for the edification of the team, but whether his guesses are right probably will not be known until January 2 at Pasadena.

RUTH BEGINS GYM WORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth, baseball's greatest slugger, has started his annual off-season training efforts at Artie McGovern's gym.

He was weighed, measured, photographed, finger-printed, and announced in as fine winter condition as he has been in the past five years.

The Babe's weight, 229 pounds, is a trifle above that of last winter, but far below his bulbous seasons of 1925, 1927 and 1928, when the clouting king scaled respectively 256, 251 and 244 pounds before starting his reducing exercises. His normal playing weight is above 220 pounds.

SOLDIERS FACE VANG TRIO

The Pittsburgh Polo League's presentation at the Hunt Armory tonight at 8:45 o'clock will feature the strong Vang combination crossing mallets with the 107th Field Artillery riders, both victims of early season upsets.

While the Vangs showed excellent form in their season's bow against Shady Side Academy, their best was not sufficient to down the classy Academy trio. The Artillerymen, after a brilliant start in pre-season matches, fell by the wayside as the 308th Cavalry riders set a gruelling pace over the six-chukker route in the season's inaugural battle.

Tonight's contest will determine which of the two emerges from last place in the league standing over the holidays. The lineup:

VANGS.		ARTILLERY.
Lieut. Clay	No. 1	Lieut. Kiser
Mazuzan	No. 2	Lieut. Collins
Kline	No. 3	Lieut. Watson

Champion Heads Seeded Net List

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Marco Hecht, of the University of Pennsylvania, the defending champion, heads the seeded list for the national junior indoor tennis championships, opening here next Tuesday.

Seeded behind the champion, in order, are Richard K. Hebard, Hill School; Giles Verstraten, Kelvin School; Bernard Friedman, University of North Carolina; John Nogrady, St. John's College, Brooklyn; Daniel Freedman, City College, New York; Willard E. Ingalls, Jr., and Sumner Rodman, both of Harvard.

All told the field includes 64 players.

SPORT VIGNETTES

It doesn't take much to capture the imagination of the public . . . Look at the swell job the Jefferson Park racing people have made of exploiting the riding duel between Hank Mills and Johnny Gilbert . . . For weeks there has been a daily story about their race to beat each other to the 200-mark in victories and also for the year's jockey championship . . . Ordinarily the races would be the thing, but, with the patronage falling off, due to the times, a new wrinkle had to be doped out to attract and hold the interest of sports page readers . . . And the rivalry between the two young riding stars proved just the ticket.

Gene Tunney is getting well along in his life story, appearing in the sports pages of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph . . . It won't be long now before he tells of the toughest fight of his career, culminating in his only defeat . . . It was with the late Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh . . . The chapters dealing with this battle are scheduled for next Tuesday and Wednesday . . . You won't want to miss them.

Johnny (K. O.) Roberts, who fought Frankie Goosby at the Arena last night, is the boxing coach at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va. . . . Manual Quintero, the Spanish-American welterweight, who is here looking for combat, tells a funny story about his two meetings with Pee Wee (Jabber) Jarrell, the Terre Haute Harlequin, well-known to the local fans . . . "The first time I fought him, he talked me out of the bout and almost out of the ring," says Manuel . . . "However, when we met again, I beat him to the punch, starting the talking and matching him word for word . . . I was so busy talking I didn't have time to listen to anything he said and won the decision . . . They tried to sign us up for a debate after that."

At the time of his first meeting with Jarrell, Manuel was boxing under the name of Young Quintero . . . "So you're YOUNG Quintero?" Jarrell popped as his opening sally . . . "Well, you'll think you're a fine OLD wreck when I get through with you."—HARRY KECK.

Local Woman Star Wins at Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 24.—Mrs. Sara Fownes Wadsworth, of Pittsburgh, has advanced to the semi-final round of the women's golf tournament here, and will fight it out with Mrs. John D. Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. Emmet French, of Southern Pines, N. C., and Mrs. Richard D. Tufts, of Pinehurst, the tourney medalist, for the championship.

Mrs. Wadsworth won by default from Mrs. D. L. Leighton, of New York. Mrs. Tufts defeated Mrs. H. H. Rackham, of Detroit, 1 up on the nineteenth hole; Mrs. French defeated Mrs. Gail Maxwell, 2 up, and Mrs. Chapman downed Mrs. James Given, Jr., of New York, 4 to 2, yesterday.

GILBERT GETS DEATH NOTE

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 24.—Among the Christmas cards received by Johnny Gilbert, sensational jockey, was one threatening him with death if he didn't boot three winners under the wire here at Jefferson Park yesterday.

Whether he took the threatening letter seriously or not isn't known, but Johnny made a valiant effort to comply with the demands. He was astride two winners, boosting his string of wins for 1932 to 203, and now leads Hank Mills, with whom he has been battling for premier honors, by nine.

The threat was to the effect that Gilbert would not live to see Christmas if he failed to ride three winners at good odds. The letter was mailed in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Gilbert scored with Jack Biener in the first race and Donate in the third. Hank Mills failed to increase his total of 194.

Irish Bow Again To Purdue Pasers

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Purdue has its basketball victory string over Notre Dame intact. Last night the Boilermakers won a rough-house contest from the Irish, 36 to 31.

The defeat also snapped the Notre Dame list of consecutive victories, which had reached 19 in two seasons.

GOLF PRO DIES

KINGHORN, Fifeshire, Scotland, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—William A. Tait, professional golfer at the Mt. Clemens (Mich.) Country Club, died yesterday after a short illness. Tait was 34 years of age and leaves his widow and three children. He had come to Scotland three weeks ago to spend the holidays.

Davis-Elkins Five Bows to Nevada

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 24.—The Davis-Elkins College basketball team arrived on the West Coast here today and prepared to battle St. Mary's College here tonight.

Last night, the touring West Virginians were defeated by the University of Nevada at Reno, 43 to 28. The lineup:

Davis-Elkins—28.	G.	F.	Pts.	Nevada—43.	G.	F.	Pts.
Vest, f.	2	1	5	Bledsoe, f.	5	2	12
Shelton, f.	3	1	7	Lee, f.	2	0	4
Heavner, f.	2	0	4	Guffrey, f.	0	1	1
Finney, f.	1	1	3	Gould, c.	6	1	13
Kendall, c.	0	4	4	Carroll, g.	4	2	10
Martin, g.	0	1	1	Curran, g.	0	0	0
Hodges, g.	3	2	8	Holt, g.	1	1	3
				Hackett, g.	0	0	0
Totals	9	10	28	Totals	18	7	43

Half-time score: Davis and Elkins, 11; Nevada, 22. Personal fouls: Vest, Shelton 4, Kendall, Martin, Heavner 2, Finney 3, Gould 3, Carroll, Curran 3, Guffrey 2, Holt, Hackett.

DUNN NET VICTOR

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—George Dunn, of Philadelphia, yesterday won the Middle States indoor junior tennis title by defeating J. William Wiss, also of Philadelphia, 8-6, 6-3, 6-3. After a hard first set, Wiss led all the way to run out the match with comparative ease.

SCOTT HIGH HANGS UP IMPRESSIVE STRING OF WINS

WESTINGHOUSE SEVENTH TO BE BEATEN

By JULIUS LEVIN

Johnny Reed's crack Scott High, of North Braddock, basketball winners of the W. P. I. A. L. and P. I. A. A. title in 1931, has piled up an imposing string of victories in its pre-season campaigning and will go into the regular championship season one of the favorites to dislodge Braddock as W. P. I. A. L. ruler.

Last night, the Scott passers nosed out Westinghouse, one of the strong teams of the City League, 35 to 30, to record their seventh triumph in a row. The victory was all the more remarkable in that Scott defeated another tough opponent, Homestead, the night before.

LEACH HIGH SCORER

Leach, Scott's guard, tallied 13 points for high score honors. He bagged five field goals and a trio of fouls.

In other games involving City League teams yesterday, South defeated Carnegie, 29 to 14; South Hills nosed out Dormont, 25 to 23, and Perry upset the alumni, 36 to 33.

Favorites came through generally in last night's clashes. Moe Rubenstein's strong Ambridge team invaded Mercer County and defeated Farrell, 29 to 23 in a hard and closely-fought struggle. Aliquippa knocked off the champion Braddock quintet, 39 to 26. Nate Lippe's team evidencing great scoring power. Mt. Lebanon downed Waynesburg, 23 to 11; New Kensington had little trouble with Wilkinsburg, winning 23 to 10; Rankin walloped Munhall, 35 to 17; Uniontown took over Belle Vernon, 30 to 13; Leetsdale defeated Freedom, 27 to 12.

FORD CITY WINS

Ford City downed Tarentum in a low-score game, 17 to 12; California won over East Bethlehem, 24 to 19; Swissvale tripped East Pittsburgh, 20 to 16; McKeesport won from Glassport, 34 to 22; Canonsburg nosed out Cecil, 21 to 17; Burgettstown took Claysville, 26 to 22; Latrobe spilled East Huntington, 26 to 13, and Butler downed Grove City, 26 to 14.

In junior high school games in the city, Calhoun won over North Braddock, 21 to 16, and Herron Hill walloped Baxter, 30 to 11.

FANS DEMAND BETTER SPORT

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A "choosier" attitude by American sports fans, compelling promoters to produce better entertainment for less money, stands out as the leading development of the closing year, on the basis of opinions expressed by the country's sports experts in the 1932 Associated Press poll.

As one Mid-Western sports editor expresses it:

"The fans today no longer are lured only by the announcement of 'fight tonight' or 'football today.' He must be assured a real show for his money. The real shows alone drew big money in the recent football season."

The returns show widespread recognition that the average sports fan now wants more for his dollar than ever before. Observers throughout the country not only cite the enterprise of professional talent in giving the public what it wants, but point out that amateur organizations, including the colleges, are doing the same thing to keep football, in particular, off the financial shoals.

Linked with this, of course, are the policies of general retrenchment, noted especially in the East, and the country-wide lowering of admission for all sports.

Summed up, here are the year's major trends, as indicated by expressions in the Associated Press canvass:

1. Better sport "shows," to meet more discriminating demand of fans.
2. General economy in operations, coupled with reduced ticket prices.
3. Rules legislation to safeguard or improve football and basketball.
4. De-emphasis of college football, stressing team play.
5. Decline of minor league baseball.
6. More individual participation, especially in less-costly sports.
7. Increase in golf play, coupled with reduced expense and more public links.
8. Slump in professional boxing, especially in Middle West.
9. Development of more interest and proficiency in girls' athletics.
10. Progress in soccer professional sports, especially wrestling and football.

Series Foemen Play Santa To Gelbert

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—World series rivalries of 1930 and 1931 were forgotten yesterday as five Philadelphia Athletics players acted the role of Santa Claus to Charley Gelbert, St. Louis Cardinal shortstop, recuperating in a hospital from wounds self-inflicted accidentally while hunting near McConnellsburg a month ago.

Eddie Collins, Jimmy Foxx, Jimmy Dykes, Lew Krausse and Jim Peterson trooped into Charley's room with an armful of presents and best Christmas wishes for an early recovery. Toy "shotguns," candy canes and baseball games were among the gifts.

Gelbert, for whom Mrs. Gelbert is going to have a Christmas party in his hospital room tomorrow, also announced receipt of gifts from many of his teammates and former teammates.

Charley sent greetings to Connie Mack, who celebrated his 70th birthday yesterday.

Waite High Leaves For Miami Game

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The Waite High School football team has left for Miami, Fla., where on Monday it will play the Miami High School eleven.

The 20 players, Coach Don McCallister, Assistant Coach Frank Pauly and Faculty Manager George Pearsall, are expected to reach Miami 8 a. m. tomorrow.

CHAMP HURLS CUE DEFI

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Ralph Greenleaf, world pocket billiard champion for the twelfth time, has issued an open challenge to any player to meet him in a 10,000-point handicap match for a side bet of $2,500 or less. Greenleaf to give his opponent a point for every dollar bet.

Under the terms of the challenge Greenleaf thus would give a challenger posting the full limit bet 2,500 points.

Erwin Rudolph, Greenleaf's leading challenger for the world title for several years and champion in 1930, was believed ready to accept the offer.

Tentative plans for the match, if and when one is scheduled, call for it to be contested in several different cities.

Young Jimmy Caras, Wilmington, Del., sensation, captured second place in the championship tournament last night by defeating Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, in the third and decisive game of a three-cornered play-off series.

Caras, who had defeated the third contender, Edwin Rudolph, in the afternoon, conquered Ponzi, 125 to 94 in 20 innings. He turned in a high run of 35 to 30 for his opponent.

Second place carried with it a cash prize of $2,800 and a 14 per cent cut in the gate receipts.

GOOSBY STOPS ROBERTS IN TWO ROUNDS

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

The Disappointed Man, Frankie Goosby, local Negro thumper, got himself another tough break last night. Fighting in the main bout of 10 rounds at the Arena, on the North Side, before a slim pre-Christmas crowd, he knocked out Johnny (K. O.) Roberts, of Huntington, W. Va., in the second round, flooring him four times in the four and one-half minutes the bout lasted.

Goosby's bad break came in the fact that he wasn't in there with Old Man Dave Shade, with whom he has been twice matched. Roberts was subbing for David last night. In the condition and fighting form he displayed, Goosby would have given Shade a rugged night and might have added vastly to his growing reputation as a boxer and puncher.

DOWN FOUR TIMES

Roberts, who had beaten Sunny Jim McVey in his first start here, a few weeks ago, didn't show a thing last night. He was slow and wide open for Goosby's both fists. He couldn't block the rights that dropped him for all of the counts. He was down the first time for nine and was picking up and replacing his knocked-out mouthpiece on another flooring when the bell ended the first round at the count of seven.

Another right spilled him into the ropes for nine soon after the second round opened and another whistled through the air to his chin as he regained his feet, completing the job for the full count.

Goosby weighed 158¼ against 160¼ for Roberts.

Charley Baxter, North Side lightweight, defeated Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, in the eight-round semi-final, a fair fight; Eddie Zivic, Lawrenceville junior-lightweight, knocked out Jackie Coogan, of Ohio, in the fourth round of the second bout, after also flooring his man in the third, and Johnny Durso, of Oakland, looked good in beating Georgie Schlee, of the North Side, in the opener.

BELMONT BOUT OFF

Jimmy Belmont's cold has forced him to break training, and his return bout with the Alabama Kid, which was to have served as the semi-final to the Gorilla Jones-Tommy Freeman bout at the Garden, Christmas afternoon, has been set back until the New Years night show. Joe Marcus, of Braddock, and Patsy Hennigan, of Clairton, will take their place. This is a return affair, Marcus having handed Hennigan the latter's first defeat when Joe came around here last summer.

Carl Montebano, of Braddock, boxes I. T. Battles, of Erie, in the opening bout Monday, with Joey Speigal, of Uniontown, and Jacquette Elverillo, of Homewood, in the second number.

STARS PRACTICE ON COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24.—On widely separated fields, the all-star elevens of the East and West, which meet here January 2 in the annual Shriners' hospital benefit game, will swing into hard training for their battle.

The Western team, under the tutelage of Dana X. Bible, of Nebraska, and Babe Hollingberry, of Washington State, will drill in the University of California's Stadium at Berkeley. The Easterners, under Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, and Andy Kerr, of Colgate, have moved to Palo Alto and will work on Stanford's practice field.

Somerville Leads Canuck Athletes

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Ross (Sandy) Somerville's feat in winning the United States amateur golf championship was the outstanding Canadian achievement in the realm of sports in 1932, in the opinion of Dominion sports experts.

Of the 63 sports editors and writers who participated in a Canadian press poll, 43 cast their ballots for Somerville, first Canadian in history to win the United States title.

The other 20 votes were cast as follows: For Jimmy McLarnin, Vancouver welterweight, 5; Alex Wilson, Hamilton, middle-distance runner, 4; Duncan McNaughton, Vancouver, Olympic high jump champion, 4; Howie Morenz and Lionel Conacher, hockey players; William (Torchy) Peden, bike rider; Frankie Battaglia, middleweight boxer; Horace (Lefty) Gwynne, Olympic bantamweight champion; Bobby Pearce, sculler, and Frank Turville, star of the Hamilton Tigers, Canadian football champions, 1 each.

Horsemen Prepare For Florida Racing

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Stables of the Eastern seaboard, from Kentucky and from the Pacific Coast will be among newcomers to winter racing who will make their Florida premiere at Hialeah Park here at the meeting starting January 19 and ending March 11.

Stall space for 1,093 thoroughbreds, representing every leading stable in the country, has been assigned.

Fight Results

At Arena, North Side—Frankie Goosby knocked out Johnny (K. O.) Roberts, 2 rounds; Charley Baxter defeated Eddie Hebner, 8 rounds; Eddie Zivic knocked out Jackie Coogan, 4 rounds; Johnny Durso defeated Georgie Schlee, 6 rounds.

At Anderson, Ind.—Willard Brown knocked out Billy Baker, 9 rounds.

GENE TUNNEY TELLS STORY OF LIFE

Beating Back After Poor Fight With Soldier Jones—Losing Weight and Repairing Hands—The Big Ballyhoo Gets Under Way

By GENE TUNNEY
Retired Heavyweight Champion

SYNOPSIS

Thus far, the author has described his strenuous boyhood, New York fight club activities and battles paving the way toward the A. E. F. ring championship in France . . . Office boy, ship company rate clerk, life saver, and now a full-fledged U. S. Marine, Tunney travels to Paris for "fame and glory" . . . winning the light-heavy title on April 26, 1919 . . . Decides to defeat Dempsey some day! Smiles . . . laughs . . . Gene returns to the U. S., is discharged and, "broke," resumes training, retaining Billy Roche as his manager when Sammy Kelly leaves for Havana. During winter of 1919-20, Tunney fought Dan O'Dowd a hard no-decision bout and knocked out Bob Pierce, Whitey Allen, Al Roberts and K. O. Sullivan. After settling managerial misunderstandings with Kelly and Roche, Tunney revives his pre-war arrangement with Bagley and things went well until his hands began to crack up. Then he betook himself to the Canadian woods as a lumberjack and later became a Maine laborer in order to repair those damaged "dukes." Upon his return, he boxes an unsatisfactory prelim to the Dempsey-Carpentier fight . . .

CHAPTER XVIII.

In my opinion, there were not three people among those 90,000 who would have said that the light-hitting, slow-moving Gene Tunney, who boxed in the semi-final, would later defeat both principals of the main bout. After all, it is impossible to tell how far a gladiator is going or to definitely estimate his merits from one fight. It is not until a man has met fighters of all styles and come through each test victoriously that he can be called a finished fighter. Finished fighters are about as rare as trans-Pacific fliers.

Gene Tunney

Although a man may occasionally look bad against an awkward, unorthodox opponent, it does not follow that he is not a good fighter. On the other hand, the rule that applies in other sports applies also in boxing. A second-rater against a fourth-rater looks unbeatable. A semi-pro baseball team looks like a world series winner against a scrub team; and so on down the line. I have ignored this truism and victimized myself on several occasions. I picked Stribling to win from Schmeling. I picked Sharkey to win from Walker. Yes—I am through picking.

FACES TWO PROBLEMS

After the Jones fight, I had a double problem. In addition to the bad hands, I had 14 pounds of excess weight to remove. I was thankful, however, that the fractured dislocation of the first metacarpal of my left hand, sustained in the Houck fight, seemed to be well again. It was only the knuckles of both hands that remained tender. And I mean tender with a capital T. I had decided to find myself some place in the country where I could swing an ax, remain out of doors, and do the strenuous road work I knew was necessary to reduce to normal fighting weight, 174 pounds.

An old friend of mine from Greenwich Village, Jimmy Eagleton, introduced me to a retired contractor, Harry F. McCormack, who had a large farm outside of Red Bank, N. J. Upon being advised of my needs by Eagleton, McCormack generously offered me the use of his farm. I made this place my headquarters until 1924.

I enjoyed these three years of simple country life immensely. When the time came to start the nation-wide campaign that led up to the Dempsey match, I deeply regretted having to leave Red Bank and the many friends I made there.

When I arrived at this farm, the first thing I did was to make a plan of training, which consisted of road work, tree-chopping and a series of finger and hand exercises that I evolved for myself. The purpose of these exercises was to strengthen the tendons, ligaments and small muscles of the hands and knuckles. The process was slow. I knew it would take many months to strengthen my hands sufficiently to withstand the force of blows. Unfortunately for me, as a boxer, my hands are unusually small for a man of my size. Surprisingly soft as well.

GETS DOWN TO WEIGHT

This was taken into consideration when this course of finger and hand exercises was drawn up. I knew that I must continue boxing to keep my eye and timing right, and moreover to live. Therefore, I accepted what matches came along.

Later in the summer of 1921, after I had got down to my normal weight, I took on three opponents, from all of whom I won decisions. They were Herbert Crossley, Martin Burke and Eddie Josephs. The last named I met in a 12-round fight at Staten Island. This was the same Eddie Josephs who refused to meet me two years earlier at Perth Amboy. I had an unusual experience that night.

Josephs put up as game a fight as I have ever seen. Owing to the soreness of my hands, I was compelled to confine my attack to a body bombardment. After having been knocked down in the third round for a count of nine with a short right under the heart, Eddie dropped every round thereafter from blows to that region. As he walked to the center, at the beginning of the last round, after a remarkable exhibition of courage from the start, Eddie whispered a request not to knock him out. I eased up. He had had my sincere admiration from the first round and I was glad of the excuse to discontinue the butchering. Now up to this time the crowd was yelling for Eddie, the home-town boy and local favorite.

SHOWS FOE MERCY

Some of the shouts of advice were:

"Come on, Eddie, he can't hit!" "Go to it, Eddie, he will quit!" "Knock him back to New York!"

When this blood-thirsty crowd realized that I was not going to continue punishing their favorite in the twelfth round, they got up and screamed:

"Fake—fake—throw the bums out."

Patsy Haley, who was refereeing the match, said:

"Come on, Gene, don't spoil a good fight."

The attitude of the crowd toward what I considered a sporting gesture, disgusted me. I refused to lay a glove on Josephs until the bell rang ending the fight. I learned before we left the club that three of Josephs' ribs over the heart were broken, also two teeth were knocked out. Yet the mob wanted the kill. This lust for the kill makes beasts of the major part of all boxing audiences.

The course of exercises that my hands were getting was gradually strengthening them, although I continued to be known as the "fighter with brittle hands." In the fall and early winter of 1921, I had three more matches in New York, two in Madison Square Garden and one at the Pioneer Athletic Club.

BEGINS BIG "BUILD-UP"

I had begun to learn by this time that there were certain complications about the rise to prominence in pugilism that I had not considered, or foreseen, and of which I was beginning to feel the importance. Doc Bagley pointed out to me the necessity of having a press agent or two who had access to the columns of daily newspapers. He pointed out that unless I had agents pounding out copy for me and getting that copy into newspapers I would remain unknown to the public; moreover, get no recognition from promoters.

"How do you think Willie Jackson, Johnny Dundee, Benny Leonard and Jack Dempsey keep their names before the public? Don't you realize that they must have press agents daily sending out copy, otherwise you will hardly hear of them? The newspapers would be full of the exploits of second, or third-raters, who have press agents."

Accordingly, I was guided by Bagley's reasoning and advice in this regard, and engaged two active newspapermen with daily columns, to each of whom I agreed to pay 5 per cent of my purses. In return for this, they gave me sufficient mention in their columns to keep my name before the public and the big promoters. This continued for about a year.

CATCHES RICKARD'S EYE

I was presently to learn that it was customary to make monetary gifts to certain newspapermen after important matches.

The wisdom of Bagley's advice from a professional point of view was soon demonstrated. Shortly after these press agents got working, my name was brought to the attention of Tex Rickard.

Tunney's next chapter will mention his auspicious Madison Square Garden debut, describe how Battling Levinsky "foxed" him and tried for sly K. O. when Gene beat him for American light-heavy title, how Gene never got the promised belt for that achievement, and how he sold a promotional idea to Rickard for $75,000! Tunney also will tell of his first, ill-fated go with Harry Greb.

HOCKEY LOOP TO CONTINUE

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—The Canadian-American Hockey League will continue with five clubs, due to the withdrawal of Springfield, President James Dooley has announced following a meeting here of the club owners.

The points in which Springfield figured will be dropped from the records, but the schedule will not be revised until January 1.

All the clubs agreed to a proposition to pay their players on a co-operative basis.

Lester Patrick, president and manager of the New York Rangers of the National Hockey League has announced that the disposition of the players of the Springfield team had just about been completed.

The players have been disposed of as follows: Gordon Pettinger, Rangers; Wilfie Starr, New York Americans; Alfie Moore and Phil Perkins, Cleveland of the International League; Jimmy Arnott and Leud Palm to Regina in Western Canada; Clint Smith to Saskatoon in Western Canada, and Vic Des Jardins to St. Paul, of the American Association.

Sweden's Ruler Lauded By Helen

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—King Gustavus V, of Sweden, is ranged as a "world champion of tennis for his age," by Helen Wills Moody, San Francisco net queen.

Delighted to be home again after the "very best time" she has ever had in Europe, Mrs. Moody returned with her husband, Frederick S. Moody, Jr. In her six-month absence she again won the French and British championships.

Telling of her match with the Swedish King, she said:

"He is very keen about tennis and, though he is 75 years old, he plays a wonderful game. We played together, partners in doubles. It was great fun."

MACK HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 24.—(AP.)—Digging his way out of a never-ceasing flow of telegrams, letters, cards, flowers and gifts, Connie Mack celebrated the "happiest birthday" he ever had—his seventieth.

The manager of the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday received birthday greetings and Christmas greetings and best wishes for more birthdays and more Christmases—and more pennants and world championships.

Few messages failed to include the hope that Mack would lead his team to a tenth American League pennant, and a sixth world title in 1933.

The flood of greetings broke into Connie's routine to the extent of making it impossible for him to transact any club business, but he was right on time in arriving at his office, high in the tower in Shibe Park, the Athletics' ball park.

He immediately started to wade through the letters and telegrams. The office was banked with flowers, but those that Mack prized most came from Hartford, Conn., where he played ball in 1885 and 1886 shortly after starting his professional career.

W. Va. Pen May Have Grid Team

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 24.—(AP.)—A suggestion that prisoners at the West Virginia State Penitentiary should have a football team has been made here by William Calvert, assistant coach at East Bank High School.

Calvert mentioned other prisons in the East with teams and said he intended to ask Governor-elect H. G. Kump to make provision for a coach and equipment for the prisoners next fall.

A schedule could be arranged and a coach obtained at a reasonable figure, Calvert said.

GRID COACHES TO STAND BY NEW RULES

By JESS CARVER

The annual gathering of the nation's college football coaches is on the boards for New York City next week, the greatest gathering of tablecloth scribblers in the land.

For all the mentors meet in a bona fide convention, one has to be a Houdini to find 'em. At the regular meetings, it is indeed a rare occasion when more than 40 per cent of the boys in town are present. What do they do? Why, they gather in hotel rooms, in restaurants and sometimes, it is rumored, in lemonade parlors, where they hold clinics all their own.

They'll line up a string of chairs and demonstrate their own particular methods of blocking, the chairs representing players. They'll order a meal in a hotel dining room, eat it, and then, pushing the dishes back, out will come pens and pencils and such an orgy of play-diagramming you never did see. The Gotham laundries welcome the annual invasion of the coaches.

TO APPROVE RULES

This year, they are expected to give their approval to the new rules, which were tested during the past season. All figure to stand, with the possible exception of the edict against the flying tackle, which may be rubbed off the slate. The coaches claim it works to the disadvantage of weaker teams, and they are expected to favor its being crossed out.

No little dissatisfaction was expressed during the season here and there over the new "dead ball" rule, many coaches arguing that it tended to slow down the game, but because of its value as a safety measure, the boys probably will let it stand.

With Howard Jones and Jock Sutherland busy in California, Chick Meehan slated to be in Florida with his Manhattan eleven for a post-season game, Hunk Anderson passing up the confab to remain on the coast and Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley also busy along the shores of the Pacific, many of the outstanding coaches of the land will be conspicuous by their absence.

HARPSTER TO ATTEND

Pittsburgh will be represented by Howard Harpster, new coach at Carnegie Tech. Elmer Layden, chief at Duquesne, is not expected to attend. Buddy Overend, Tech's graduate manager, is going along with Harpster, but Buddy will attend the annual gathering of the Eastern Association for the Selection of Football Officials, December 27, and the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference.

The coaches' gathering again is slated for the Astor (you'd think the dear old Astor would know better by this time) and will hold forth December 29 and 30.

The Tipoff

The good alumni of old Pitt in California, in dignified session yesterday, elected Miss Gloria Stuart, Wampus baby star of Hollywood, to be the mascot of the Pitt Panthers at the Rose Bowl game with Southern California at Pasadena. Miss Stuart is a lovely brunette. Prior to leaving for the coast last week, Capt. Paul Reider was pulling for Zasu Pitts.

If Chick Meehan signs Jimmy Rooney as his backfield coach at Manhattan College, the North Side Irishman will owe his job to the recommendation of Luby DiMeolo, present first assistant to Howard Cann at N. Y. U. and Chick's line coach during the Meehan regime at the same institution.

Meehan always has been DiMeolo's greatest booster. Chick will tell you Luby was as fine a guard as ever missed a signal or rubbed a fullback's nose in the dirt. He lost no time in signing the former Pitt leader once he graduated and made a strenuous effort to have Luby accompany him to Manhattan when he changed jobs last winter. Though Luby elected to stay with the Violets, he and Chick remained close friends, and it was Luby who put Rooney "in" with Chick.

Notre Dame has failed again to beat Purdue in basketball. The Irish lost their first game in 20 starts last night to the Hoosiermakers, by a five-point margin. Purdue appears here next Saturday night against Pitt.

And so, a Merry, Merry Christmas to you all, and to all a good day.

May 6 Set As Date For Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Kentucky Derby day has been set for Saturday, May 6, subject to approval of the Kentucky Racing Commission.

The date was included in the schedule of spring racing for Churchill Downs here submitted to the board or directors of the American Turf Association by Col. Matt J. Winn, executive director.

A 19-day meeting is planned at the Downs, opening Saturday, April 29, and closing Saturday, May 20.

No changes were made in the added value of the $50,000 derby or any other spring stakes or handicap.

Ambridge Postoffice Contract to Be Let

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Dec. 24.—A contract for the construction of Ambridge's new $100,000 postoffice will be let January 17 by the Treasury Department. The structure, of stone and brick, will be erected in Merchant street.

Schumann-Heink, Brisbane, Trinity Chimes, 'Big Ben' Greet Christmas

A gala parade of headlining international, national and local radio programs ushers in Christmas tonight.

Outstanding is a special "Christmas Greetings" program, on WCAE at 9:30, with Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink as guest artist. The universally-loved singer, going on the air from New York, is introduced from Miami, Fla., by Arthur Brisbane, noted editor, whose "Today" column appears daily in the Sun-Telegraph. Mme. Schumann-Heink, to be heard in Germany, her native country, and throughout Europe by short-wave, sings the Christmas song, "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht" ("Silent Night, Holy Night"). The program is introduced by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company.

Arthur Brisbane

The Pittsburgh Madrigal Singers, presenting a program of Christmas carols from the studios of KDKA under the direction of Mrs. James Stevens Martin, are heard over an extensive NBC-WJZ network for a quarter-hour beginning at 10 o'clock. The second half of the program, scheduled for 30 minutes, is broadcast by KDKA only.

Other yuletide features of distinction listed tonight include:

Lighting of the National Community Christmas Tree in Washington with Vice President Charles Curtis as principal speaker, WCAE at 5 and WJAS at 5:15.

Concert by a 150-voice mixed chorus of high school students of Niagara Falls during Edward d'Anna's program on WJAS at 9:30.

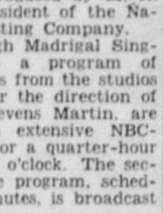
Program Pointers

A Christmas greeting and a message to all veterans of the World War by Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion, is to be broadcast over the blue network of the National Broadcasting Company from the studios of KDKA at 7:15 tonight. Johnson, who came to Pittsburgh from his Clarksburg (W. Va.) home today specially for the broadcast, is expected to speak on care of disabled veterans and veteran compensation.



Mr. Johnson

A holiday greeting from the staff of WCAE by J. L. Kaufman, manager of WCAE, and microphone appearances by members of the staff mark a special yuletide broadcast at 11:55 p. m.

A special Christmas broadcast to Far North dwellers, including a message by Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, pastor of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, and music by the church quartet, is scheduled on KDKA and its short-wave unit, W8XK, at 11:20.

The first of a series of concerts by faculty members and students of the Duquesne University school of music is presented on WWSW at 9.

Attorney Maurice H. Goldstein, member of the board of directors of the Y. M. H. A., speaks in behalf of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh's annual sale of Christmas seals over WWSW at 8:20.

Alexander Haas and his Budapest Gypsy Ensemble, exponents of authentic Hungarian and Gypsy music, return to WJAS for a new series of weekly half-hour broadcasts tonight at 8:30.

Mme. Schumann-Heink sings her Christmas greeting, "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht," to American and European dialers over WCAE at 9:30 tonight. Editor Arthur Brisbane and M. H. Aylesworth, NBC president, also participate in the program.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello and Merry Christmas:

Chicago need not think it is exclusive in the idea of mending children's shoes at school. Mrs. Collins, who heard the broadcast, informs me that at the Turtle Creek Penn Avenue School, children are provided with dry stockings and their shoes are mended when they tramp in with wet feet. A cheer for its principal, W. A. Rodgers.

No wonder William F. Donovan claims that the best system of protection for sledriders is in vogue at Newell, Pa., where a splendid track crosses two roads. The men on relief act as guards at the intersections. At night they use red lanterns to stop motorists. The children are safe, the men are happy for something to do, so the correspondent passes the idea along to other communities.

C. J. Van Meter wants to know how come we announced that the Ohio River near Gallipolis hadn't been frozen over before in 38 years when he drove over the river in a truck not 10 years ago.

Help has arrived from Mrs. Mainwaring, of Kennywood, who suggests trying to say "Gallop Police" when pronouncing the name of that town.

Five - year - old, wide - eyed, golden-haired Patsy Deasy, of Morningside, is a full fledged businesswoman. She heard the announcement that the Doll Lady was giving a doll for three subscriptions to the Sun-Telegraph. Later her mother, on inquiry, showed her the pictures in the paper of "Precious Baby" and "Ducky Darling." Yesterday her astonished mother's heart beat a little faster when she heard the child's trill like voice plead: "Mama, get me "Ducky Darlin," I got three 'scriptions."

Here's a splendid Christmas decoration utilizing our well-used depression plant formula: Place a sprig of your Christmas tree in a milk bottle, drape it loosely with cotton, saturate the cotton with your solution and then see what a fine plant Santa Claus will make for you. If you have no tree use a wire frame. You'll like this.

Formula for above solution: Equal parts of water, salt and bluing. Green ink, mercurochrome, food tints for coloring effects.

Christmas means a lot to me. It marks the anniversary of the day when first I became your Globe-Trotter and I cannot help but feel grateful to all of you whose kindness and co-operation were a chief source of happiness during the past year. Believe me sincere when I wish you a Merry Christmas.

Does it give you a thrill to see an automobile go by with a Christmas tree secured to the running board or nestled between the motor and the front fender?

Just time enough to make an interesting observance in answer to a letter from George S. Rowan, of Mill Run. The last time Christmas came on Sunday was in 1927 and the next time will be in 1938. Merry Christmas again.

NO. 324

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing an agreement between the City of Pittsburgh and the Borough of Swissvale providing for the construction, maintenance and repairs of a separate branch sewer through Frick Park, from the dividing line between the said city and borough at Braddock avenue, to the existing Nine Mile Run trunk sewer, southwest of Trevanion avenue, and further providing for the maintenance, repairs and the payment to the city of the pro rata share of the cost of the Nine Mile Run trunk sewer from a point southwest of Trevanion avenue to the Monongahela River.

WHEREAS—The Borough of Swissvale is desirous of constructing an 18" separate branch sewer through Frick Park, from the dividing line between the said city and borough at Braddock avenue to the existing Nine Mile Run trunk sewer, southwest of Trevanion avenue, for the purpose of carrying the separate drainage from the sewer system of the said borough to the Nine Mile Run city trunk sewer, and

WHEREAS—As the use of said sewer will be beneficial only to the Borough of Swissvale, the cost of construction, maintenance and repairs thereof shall be borne by the said borough, and

WHEREAS—The City of Pittsburgh has heretofore, at its own cost constructed the Nine Mile Run separate trunk sewer extending from a point southwest of Trevanion avenue to the Monongahela River, at a total cost of $142,764.44, and

WHEREAS—The pro rata share of the Borough of Swissvale of the cost of the construction of said separate trunk sewer based on the area and the estimated future population of said borough within the Nine Mile Run drainage basin is 8.6%, amounting to $9,422.45.

NOW, THEREFORE

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Mayor and the Director of the Department of Public Works, be and they are hereby authorized and directed to enter into an agreement on behalf of the City of Pittsburgh with the Borough of Swissvale, said agreement to be in the following form, to-wit:

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT

MADE and entered into this ..... day of ....., 1932, between the City of Pittsburgh and the Borough of Swissvale, to provide for the construction, maintenance and repairs of a separate branch sewer through Frick Park from the dividing line between said city and borough at Braddock avenue, to the existing Nine Mile Run trunk sewer, southwest of Trevanion avenue, and further providing for the maintenance, repairs and the payment to the city of the pro rata share of the cost of the Nine Mile Run trunk sewer, from a point southwest of Trevanion avenue to the Monongahela River;

THEREFORE, THIS AGREEMENT WITNESSETH:

(a) That the City of Pittsburgh hereby grants the Borough of Swissvale the right to enter upon and to construct an 18" sewer through a portion of Frick Park, from the dividing line between the said city and borough at Braddock avenue, to connect with the existing Nine Mile Run trunk sewer, southwest of Trevanion avenue, at their own expense and without cost to the City of Pittsburgh.

(b) The Borough of Swissvale agrees

1. It will prepare and submit a contract plan for the construction of the sewer for the consideration and approval of the Director of the Department of Public Works of the City of Pittsburgh and construct said sewer under the supervision of said Department of Public Works, in accordance with the standard specifications of the city. The sewer shall be of the separate type into which the drainage of storm water and ground water will not be permitted.

2. It will pay to the City of Pittsburgh the sum of $9,422.45 in four (4) installments with 6% interest on unpaid balances as follows: $2,355.61 upon the execution of the agreement and the sum of $2,355.61 in four annual installments thereafter with 6% interest until the total amount of $9,422.45, with interest, is paid.

3. It will repair and maintain the said branch connecting sewer across private property from the dividing line between the City of Pittsburgh and the Borough of Swissvale, to the Nine Mile Run trunk sewer, southwest of Trevanion avenue at its own expense and without cost to the City of Pittsburgh, and will from time to time as they accrue pay to the City of Pittsburgh its pro rata share, which is 6.6% of the cost of maintenance and repairs to the Nine Mile Run trunk sewer, from a point southwest of Trevanion avenue, to the Monongahela River.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, The parties to this agreement each, pursuant to proper ordinances and resolutions authorizing the same, hereto affix their respective seals duly attested by the proper officers the day and year first above written.

Why Should Girls Let Boys Do All the Spending?

Should dates be "Dutch treat?"

Or is it up to the boys to do all the paying when stepping Susy out for an evening's fun?

Once, of course, there could have been only one answer to those questions, and any lad who even thought of asking them would have been checked off from every list. But that was before gals were People with Pay Checks. So—

How about it now?

Is it up to the man to pay, and pay, because he is a man? Is it fair for Peggy and Mary, who make as much as he does and maybe more, to let him do all the spending? Or should she pay her share?

Dear Elsie:

Maybe you will think that this is a queer letter, and maybe you will think that I have a nerve writing it. I am sure that a lot of girls will think so. It's girls like that who are responsible for my writing it.

In short, I'm writing about this question of a fellow taking a girl out for dinner, or a show, or an evening of dancing. And paying all the tolls for such entertainment.

I am a young man of 24. I like company. I would like to ask girls to go out with me, and even the way things are I sometimes do. But I haven't a great deal of money, and I am trying to save a little for accidents, rainy days and the future generally; so I can't take any girl out for an expensive evening.

EXPECT MEN TO PAY

I could afford to pay my share, if the girl were willing to pay hers, and we could have a lot of fun. But are any of them willing—willing to go for the sake of seeing the show, of having company, of laughing and talking? No. What they want is to be "taken out," meaning that the man must pay for everything; and the evening just wouldn't be worth anything to them, no matter how much fun they might actually have, if he didn't.

There is one girl whom I have known ever since we were kids in grammar school. I thought I knew her well enough to ask her out Dutch treat, so I did it. She went, but I could see that she thought it was the bunk, so I didn't ask her again—and I didn't ask any other girl.

Now a lot of these girls I know make just as much money as I do. One or two of them make more. They're proud of their salaries. They talk about their "independence," about how well they're getting along, and how they're succeeding, and so forth. But still, when they go out with a man, he's supposed to be the goat.

QUESTIONS FAIRNESS

Is it fair? We're supposed to be living in a new era. We're supposed to have a "finer companionship" between girls and boys. At least you read about it, and hear people talk about it. But it doesn't seem to include equality in bill paying. Girls still don't seem to go around with boys they know because they find them interesting. They go for what they can get. And if there is any hint that they won't get it, they're sore.

How about it? What do you think? If girls get just as much money as the boys they know, why should they expect the boys to do all the spending? I wish someone would explain this to me. I know other fellows feel the same way—as if the girls were using the old "feminine" line to impose on them. What have you to say? PAUL.

Well, Paul, being cautious, and not having a cyclone cellar handy, I'm not saying anything. I'm putting it up to the gang.

How about it, girls?

Is it the bunk for a girl with a fat pay check to expect the Boy Friend to pay her way to all the shows? Would you be willing to go Dutch treat with a man you liked to be with—or would you be insulted at the idea?

If you'd be insulted, why would you?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Healthy Persons Should Visit the Doctor, Too

Within the past quarter of a century the practice of medicine has undergone a marked change. In former years the doctor was busy fighting the effects of disease. The old time profession was not familiar with what modern discovery has made possible in developing methods of preventing disease. Today, physicians are concerned with the prevention, really more than with the cure of disease.

Dr. Copeland

I frequently refer to the importance of proper attention to diet. I am always urging upon you the value of periodic health examinations and early care of all physical defects. A great deal has been written about the value, indeed the necessity, of such examinations. But it is a difficult task to convince the healthy person of his need to consult a physician. He does this when he is really sick, but hates to go to the doctor when he is well, or apparently well.

Those who wait for ache or pain, should realize that by the careful medical examination certain diseases, like diabetes, tuberculosis and cancer, can be recognized in their curable stage. When discovered early and handled properly, relief and, in many cases, complete cure can be had.

Almost always the person who submits to the examination is pronounced fit and in excellent health. Then he knows when next he is examined by the doctor, any abnormal defect, no matter how slight, will be found in the curable stage. The first checkup is the important one, but each succeeding one has its value.

You would not drive an automobile continuously without an occasional overhauling. Yet, many persons appear to expect their bodies will continue to function perfectly without overhauling or adjustment. Preserving health by early discovery of trouble means longer, happier and more useful lives.

By "periodic health examinations," we mean there is an examination of the body at least twice a year. The heart, teeth, tonsils and other spots of possible weakness, are carefully checked for signs of wear and tear. The span of life is lessened if one learns too late that trouble is brewing.

If you have not recently consulted a physician let me urge you to do so now. Do not postpone this visit, waiting until you have pain. Visit your doctor before you are sick. Prevention rather than cure determines the health of the nation.

Mark your calendar for a visit to the doctor every six months. Tell your friends of the many advantages found in this method of combating disease and poor health. Complete co-operation between the general public and the medical profession is necessary if the effort towards better health is to be a success.

Answers to Health Queries

S. M. D. Q.—What diet do you advise for a weak heart?

A.—No special diet. Eat plenty of good, nourishing food.

Mrs. W. Q.—What treatment do you advise for a severe burn?

A.—Severe burns should have the attention of a doctor.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

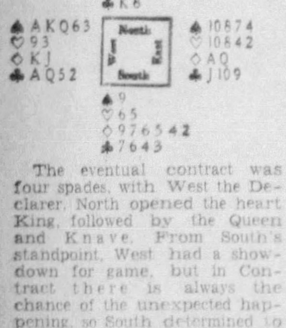
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Saving Game Without Winning a Trick

Some of the most interesting hands at Bridge never take a trick. Most people, when they pick up a Yarborough, find it hard to maintain their interest in the game, but there are Yarboroughs that afford to the holder opportunities for game-saving play, such, for instance, as the following:

West—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.



The eventual contract was four spades, with West the Declarer. North opened the heart King, followed by the Queen and Knave. From South's standpoint, West had a showdown for game, but in Contract there is always the chance of the unexpected happening, so South determined to trump the heart Knave with his singleton trump. It was a friendly game, and the other players joked about South trumping his partner's good trick. The play may have appeared bad, yet it was based upon a very sound principle of defense, which is: If you have no cards that will save game, then try to build up your partner's holding so that he may possibly do it.

This play succeeded because West was forced to over-ruff with an honor and thus could not capture North's Knave of spades. Due to South's ruffing the trick held by his partner's high card, the contract was defeated, as North took two hearts, one spade and one club. The South hand looks drab and uninteresting, but even the meagerest holdings may be worthwhile, if properly handled.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: What is the correct Opening bid by Dealer, vulnerable, with a part-score of 60, on the following hand?

♠ Q J 10 ♡ A K 10 ◇ A Q 8 ♣ A K 7 5

Answer: Two notrump. The Approach principle should be abandoned in view of the part-score, the strong honor-trick holding and the balanced distribution. In other words, partner may be too weak to respond to an Opening bid of one club, and the club suit is too weak to risk a pass on an Opening two club bid.

"HER DOLL"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

Once in that shimmering picture, dancing half in light and half in shade, that is the playing child that once was each of us, a little girl dressed a doll of a late winter afternoon. She had nothing on her mind but the serious thoughts of a little girl, and a bright mop of glistening hair. Out of a midget trunk she drew forth miniature hats and frocks, panties and shoes with little tin buckles. And she held her doll on her knee, and took off, and put on, and did it all over again, until the alien grown-up, who tried hard to remember his own childhood and the thoughts of his heart in that far-off time, wondered when this slim-and-soft bodied young lady would ever weary, IF ever.

AND he marveled at the devotion lavished upon the quite placidly dumb and beautiful bisque creature with Greta-like eyelashes, but without the Greta-intelligence. Empty head, and saw-dust stuffing. Nevertheless the small heart under the little dimity frock beat warm for her—and called her "Marguerite." Sewed for her, and washed for her. Forgot time for her. Loved her madly.

Now—in the plainer picture of Now—I saw the young woman who once was that little girl. The picture wasn't shimmering—as memory pictures do like visions in a heat-wave—but looking close I almost saw a halo trembling, angel-like above her head. On her silken knees she held her baby, her real doll, round, alive, with shining round eyes fixed first on the brightest spot in the room, and then on her mother's face. And she played with her. While the new pink baby held up bravely under the dressing and undressing, but got slowly pinker and pinker with the strain. Woolly bonnets, lace bonnets, jackettes, boots, the frantic gifts of devoted relatives. The little girl, grown up, patted them on. And the doll pried them off. No placid doll, this; thought beautiful as a dream, to her mother. The heart under her silk frock beat warm as once the same heart did, much younger and smaller. She sews for her, and washes for her. And forgets time for her. And loves her madly.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Significance of Ring

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been going with a very nice girl for the past two years and recently I gave her a very lovely diamond ring. I had both our initials and the date engraved in the band.

Some of my friends say it is not an engagement ring if I did not say it was. It has started me thinking whether they are right and I am wrong, so I have come to you for help.

I really thought that by having our initials on the ring made it more certain that it was an engagement ring.

M.

No ring is an engagement ring . . . no matter how much it looks like one and no matter what is engraved inside . . . unless it is given as such and accepted as such. Such a ring must be so designated before it becomes a symbol of an engagement.

An Inappropriate Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In high school there is a very young and intelligent boy. He seems to pay a little attention to my girl friend. For instance, he says "Hello" and smiles when he sees her.

She wishes to become better acquainted, and I have suggested that she send him a box of candy or a book as a Christmas gift. She thinks that would be incorrect, and I think it would be correct. Who is right? T.

Lady, lady, I hope that your friend doesn't act on your suggestion. Sending this young man a present for Christmas would certainly be an inappropriate thing to do. And I am sure that he would be embarrassed at this "attention" . . . at least he should be.

Extending Hospitality

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A says that it is incorrect for a young lady to invite a young man to her home. She says that the young lady should wait until the young man has asked to call on her.

Please tell me if A is correct. E.

Either is correct. It is correct for the young lady to extend the hospitality of her home by inviting the young man to come to see her. And, on the other hand, the young man may gallantly ask her if he may have the privilege of coming to see her.

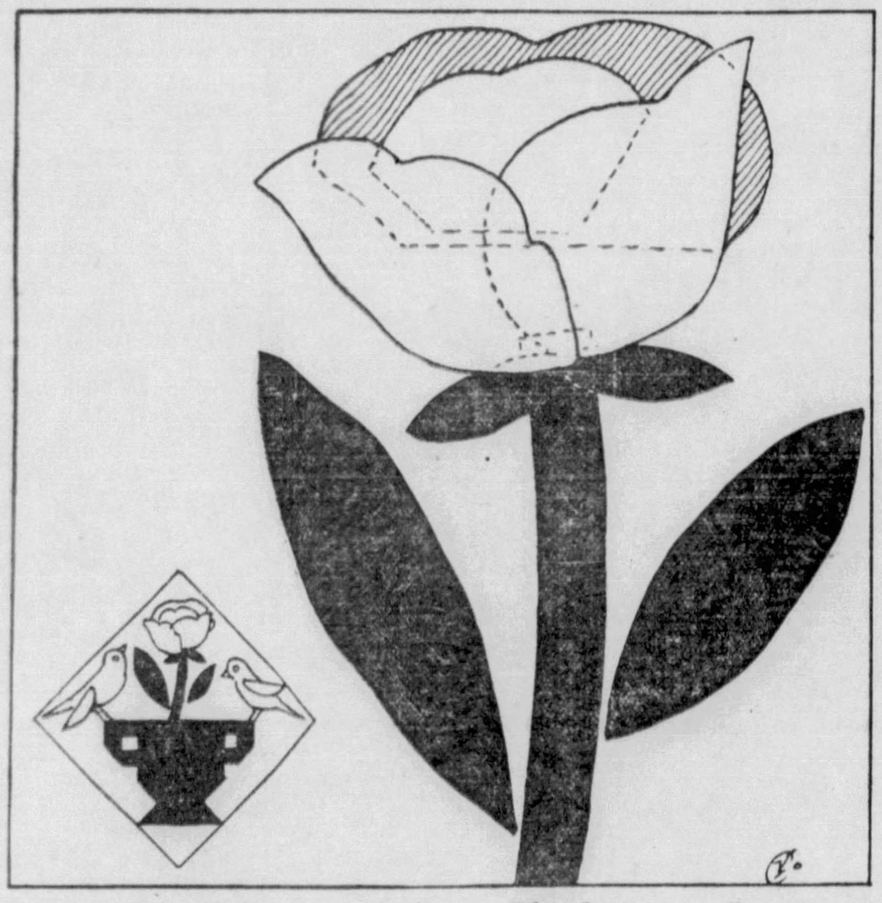
Nancy Page Quilt Club

By Florence La Ganke



Garden Bouquet Quilt -- Block 14 -- Poppy

KEEP QUILT PATTERNS IN BEAUTIFUL SCRAP-BOOK

You will want to preserve the attractive quilt patterns each week in the beautiful Quilt Scrapbook which Nancy Page has designed. All directions, including the unique quilted cover are contained in the illustrated Free Quilt Scrapbook Leaflet which you may have by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Nancy Page, in care of this paper.

It's a quick jump that quilt makers take. Last week they were busily ushering in one of the first flowers of spring—the daffodil, and today they are in the hey day of summer with its glorious poppies.

This poppy may be developed in pinks, soft reds or in yellows or soft orange. It all depends upon the scraps and the looks of the colors in the quilt.

Nancy cautioned the members against making any one flower of too noisy or strong a color. When that is done, the one flower stands out like a sore thumb. It is best, the club members found, to keep all the colors rather subdued.

This flower has a number of pieces four are used in the flower, two little sepals and two leaves, as well as stem. The stem is easy, since that is made from bias tape. The leaves are of same shade of green as stem. The sepals may be of a darker green. The petals are of two shades. The back one, shown as a shaded piece in the pattern, is of a darker shade than the three front petals. The dotted lines indicate the overlapping of pieces. It is wise to cut these as shown in pattern, for straight edges or plenty of underlap help to hold the pieces in shape. The members had the white triangle ready. This is cut 12½ by 12½ by 17½ inches. It is seamed on the 17-inch side to the pieced urn block, which has been prepared ahead of time. The pattern for the urn was given at the start of this quilt. The members used the urn pattern every time they prepared a new block. It is used 20 times in all in the quilt. This is the fourteenth flower block.

The birds, patterns for which were given earlier also, are always appliqued to the upper white triangle, in which is placed the flower. The method of procedure had become a habit by this time with all the members. First they cut the pattern with its accompanying directions, from the paper. Next they traced the flower lightly onto the upper triangle of white. Thirdly, they traced the design onto lightweight cardboard. Fourthly, they placed the original pattern for safe keeping in the Nancy Page scrapbook. Next they cut out the cardboard pattern into its parts. They laid these on the color-fast material and cut the pieces, allowing one-quarter inch on all sides for turning under raw edges. When these were turned under they were basted and pressed. Then they laid them in place on the white triangle, following the light tracery made at the start. The pieces were then appliqued with slanting, hemming stitch. The block was complete when the flower, its leaves and stem were growing from the urn and when the admiring birds were appliqued beside the flower.

BACK BLOCKS SUPPLIED

In the event you have missed any of the Garden Bouquet Quilt blocks previously published in this paper, please send 10 cents for each block missing. Also inclose stamped, addressed envelope. Address Nancy Page, care of this paper.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary Arrives With Book Containing Secret Code

With every appearance of strict obedience to Lillian's demands, I telephoned Mrs. Barnes, told her that Helena was asleep and that Lillian and I were going to lie down for awhile, and asked her to telephone us if for any reason she wished to speak to us. She promised in equally camouflaged terms, and I turned to Lillian triumphantly.

"Now take a hot bath and get into that bed," I commanded.

"You know that the girls are alive and well treated. We're not expected to send any message until tomorrow, and every possible angle is being covered by Father, Dicky, Harry, Hugh and Lee Chow, while Mary and Noel are rushing that code book of yours and Marion's to you as fast as can be done. You want all the strength possible when it gets here. So, to please me—"

"I'll do my best," she promised docilely, and kept her word. When I returned with the hot milk I had ordered, she raised herself from the pillow and sipped it with no intimation that she suspected it contained the powerful sedative—duplicate of the one the physician had ordered for Helena, and which he had authorized me to give to Lillian.

MARY RETURNS

I waited only until she was soundly asleep before following my own prescription—hot bath, hot glass of milk, magazine. But I did not go to another room, nor did I get into bed. I dressed fully, except for my gown and shoes, put on a dressing gown and lay down on a couch in the sitting room of the suite, having first made arrangements with the mistress of the hotel, a brisk, efficient, college-trained woman, to come softly into the room and awaken me if any message should come for me.

I needed no sedative, nor even the device of reading. Utterly spent, and freed, by my precautions, from the fear of Lillian's being awakened, I burrowed deep into my pillow and slept so soundly that when I was awakened by a vigorous shaking, Mary clapped her hand over my mouth to prevent any startled outcry.

"Come into my room," she whispered, when she saw I was thoroughly awake, and slipped stealthily away. I caught up my dress and shoes and padded after her, thankful that I encountered no one in the corridor in the short distance that lay between her room and the Underwood suite.

"Mrs. Littell told me how you had asked her to awaken you," Mary explained, locking the door behind me when she had put me into an easy chair, "so I told her I'd follow the instructions she had. But oh, boy! Was that a job? I take off my hat to the awakener of the Seven Sleepers, if you're any indication. Hope I didn't hurt you, clapping my hand over your mouth like that, but I was so afraid Aunt Lillian would wake up."

HAS CODE BOOK

"You did exactly the right thing," I told her approvingly, "and you didn't hurt me at all. Did you get the book?"

"Did I? In record-breaking time, too. Everything just clicked, all the way. Aunt Katherine found the book in the very first box that she opened, and Jerry Ticer didn't pull a single boner on his way in to meet Noel."

"Where is Noel?" Did he come back with you?"

"Did he ever? I drove, because a girl can get away with speeding better than a man. At that, I nearly got a ticket twice, but I talked myself out of anything but a warning. Noel's downstairs cooling his heels in one of the sitting rooms. Do you suppose we could get away for a bit of lunch soon? We haven't had anything to eat, I don't remember when."

"Of course," I said. "Neither one of you will be needed for a couple of hours, at least."

"Then I can tell you now where we're going," she said, and you can telephone us there if you want us. That darling little place this side of Schooley Mountain—the one you reach by a foot-bridge over the brook, and where you get that marvelous chicken and waffles combination."

"Yes, I know," I told her. "Run along and find it; and tell Noel how much I thank you both."

. . . Colds doubly dangerous with Flu around

HEALTH authorities warn that every precaution should be taken to check colds promptly. Colds pull down body resistance, and often pave the way for an attack of flu and its serious complications. Don't take chances. For greatest safety and protection, follow Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds. With certain simple rules of health, the Plan, briefly, is this:

TO PREVENT MANY COLDS: At that first feeling of stuffiness or nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze—Nature's usual warning that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, the new aid in preventing colds. This will check many colds at the nose and throat—where most colds start.

TO END A COLD SOONER: If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, vigorous measures are necessary. Rest as much as possible, preferably in bed. Take a mild laxative, if needed. At bedtime, apply Vicks VapoRub, the modern external treatment, for its direct, double action while you sleep. During the day, use the convenient Vicks Nose Drops for added comfort and relief while you work.

Vicks Plan Tested and Proved

In numerous clinical tests, last winter, Vicks Colds-Control Plan reduced the number and duration of colds by half . . . cut the cost of colds more than half. How you can follow the Plan in your home is fully explained in each Vicks package.

SEAL CAMPAIGN CLOSING

The annual Christmas seal campaign of the Tuberculosis League of Pittsburgh was to end today. The booth sale of seals in the downtown district under the direction of Mrs. J. Paul Warner closed last night.

Persons desiring Christmas seals for letters or parcels can obtain them at the headquarters of the league, 2851 Bedford avenue, or by calling Mayflower 0400 and asking for the seal office.

Although complete returns on the sale will not be available for some time, this year's sale of seals, from present indications, will be successful beyond the expectation of workers. The seal campaign here thus far has met with better response from the public than other local sales conducted throughout the state, including Philadelphia. The goal of the Pittsburgh sale was $100,000.

BOY SCOUT BELT SLAYING CLUE

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(INS.)—Detectives groped today for a solution to the newest "sack murder mystery," uncovered in a sewer catch basin yesterday, with a Boy Scout belt as their only clue.

Examination of the body of the victim, police said, indicated he was between 14 and 16. The body was clad in a blue suit and blue shirt. About it was a Boy Scout belt.

The youth, according to detectives, had apparently been slain and his body, wrapped in two burlap bags and trussed up with rope, thrust into the sewer about eight weeks ago.

Detectives scanned the records of the missing persons bureau in the hope of finding some trace to identity of the boy. The cause of death was still undetermined.

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Newlyweds Return to City And Learn That Kim's Mother Is Sick

CHAPTER XV.

It was indeed the life . . . There were no outsiders to bother them, no ringing of the telephone, no necessity of getting anywhere at any time. They were in a hushed snowy world of their own where they could do exactly as they pleased. It was wonderful.

"We're like Robinson Crusoe and his man Friday on their desert island," Mary Faith said one morning. She was on her knees, raking out the ashes from the fireplace in their big sunny bedroom.

"You work all the time as if you thought you were man Friday," Kim answered her. "I ought to be ashamed to lie here in bed and let you build that fire."

Propped against the fat pillows of the bed he lay smoking his first cigaret of the day and watching her with half-shut gray eyes.

While he bathed and shaved and dressed, Mary Faith would cook breakfast—a real country breakfast of eggs and sausage, creamed potatoes and coffee. They always ate it before the fireplace in Aunt Ella's parlor with its Battenberg lace curtains, its family albums, and green plush curtains.

Sometimes they stayed at home all day. Mary Faith would curl up at one end of the wide sofa, and Kim would lie with his head in her lap while she read to him and stroked his thick blond hair with slow gentle fingers.

FORGOT PRESENT

Sometimes they drove down into Garrettsville to buy groceries or newspapers or tooth paste. Sometimes they went for long tramps through the snowy fields and woods that lay behind the house and came back with bunches of mistletoe and evergreen branches in their arms.

They went to church on both Sundays and sat in Aunt Ella's pew with its seat of wine-colored velvet. On Christmas morning Mary Faith presented Kim with two French brier pipes that she had bought in "Ye Old Smoke Shoppe" in Garrettsville, because he was smoking too many cigarets, so she told him.

"You embarrass me with your gift—I forgot to get one for you," he said, when she gave them to him. "And that reminds me—I haven't bought you your wedding ring yet, have I?"

"No. And I would really like one, Kim. Just a plain white-gold band. We'll walk into town one of these mornings and get one, won't we?"

"Sure; we'll do it tomorrow without fail," he promised.

But the next day there was a blizzard and they stayed in the house and hugged the stove.

"Our friend Claire Maldon is all wrong about honeymoons, Kim," Mary Faith observed one night as they sat on the big white bearskin rug that lay before the fireplace in the parlor, listening to the dance music that came pouring into the room from the wheezy radio. "We've been married for almost two weeks and I haven't been bored for a single second, have you?"

DISLIKES LEAVING

"You haven't seen me yawn, have you?" Kim's eyes twinkled. "Claire said we'd be so bored after the first week that we'd yawn every time we looked at each other. Remember?"

It was their second Friday night in the little house. In the morning they would have to think about setting it in order for Aunt Ella, and on Sunday they would have to lock it up and go back to town.

"The thought of packing up and leaving gives me the blues, as a matter of fact," Kim said, stretching his long legs out toward the fire. "I could stay right here with you until next summer and like it. I've never been so contented in my life as I've been the last couple of weeks."

Mary Faith knew that she had made him happy and comfortable. She had worked at it. She had cooked the things he liked. She had darned his socks and pressed his neckties. Every morning she had filled his tub and laid clean towels out for his bath. On Monday she had gone down into the basement, while he was taking a nap, and laundered his shirts . . . And she had loved doing it. She loved taking care of him.

"I've had the time of my life, Kim," she said, "and I'm still having it. It's heaven to be here together, isn't it? Listen, there's the Morrow Hotel Orchestra. They're playing our song."

With their eyes on the fire they sat listening to a blues song on the radio.

HONEYMOON ENDS

All last summer they had danced to that music—the song hit of 1927. They had fallen in love with its melody and had asked orchestra leaders to play it for them. They had called it their song.

Kim got up. "Let's see if we've forgotten how to dance together, Mary Faith."

They hadn't.

They moved across the little room like one swiftly moving figure, crooning the silly wistful words of the song as they danced.

Long afterward, whenever Mary Faith heard it, she would remember the smell of pine logs in the fireplace, the sound of the wind rattling the shutters of the little house, and the comfort of Kim's arms around her, the warmth of his hand on her waist.

She would remember how light-hearted they had been that night.

They came back to town at dusk on Sunday. The grayness and the noise, the misted street lamps and the cars packed with tired-looking people depressed Mary Faith. She remembered suddenly that Kim's mother would have to be faced in a few minutes, and that Kim would be gone all day tomorrow.

A line of Robert Browning popped into her head. "'So we lose our Eden—Kim and I,'" she said to herself, leaning back in the crook of his arm as the roadster nosed its way through the crowded downtown streets.

"Well, here we are, back to the old everyday existence," Kim said, as if he read her thoughts. "Only it won't be dull and everyday for us now, will it?"

The windows of the flat were in darkness when they drove up in front of the apartment house on Wilton street.

"Looks as if the sisters Kimberley have gone to church, doesn't it?" Kim asked, switching on the lights in the living room as they came in. His mother and his aunt had been the Misses Kimberley when they were young.

"Hello! Anybody at home?" he called, and almost at once Aunt Ella answered him from the rear of the flat.

"Kimberly, is that you?"

She came trotting into the room, her finger on her lips.

"Let me talk to you," she whispered and waved them back into the hallway.

"Your mother's sick in bed with a little cold," she said to Kim softly. "She's been all upset about you for two weeks, and I think she's just worked herself up into sickness. You know how high-strung she is . . . So I thought maybe you'd better go in alone and speak to her, Kimberley."

"No, we'll both go in to see her," Kim answered firmly. "Come along, Mary Faith."

Aunt Ella padded along behind them.

Synopsis

Mary Faith and Kimberley Farrell have been engaged for some time. Kim's attitude changes brusquely when his mother objects. The latter treats Mary Faith coldly and breaks the engagement. Heartbroken, Mary Faith returns to her office and holds her job Mark Nesbit, her employer taken ill, has Mary Faith driven to his country home daily for two weeks. He tells her of his love for her. She halts him, saying she will never love anyone as she did Kim. While in a jewelry store with Mark, selecting a Christmas ring for his sister, Mary Faith meets Kim with a girl. Next morning Kim calls at Mary Faith's boarding house. He assures her of his love and proposes immediate marriage. The next morning they get married and go to the country home of Kim's aunt for their honeymoon.

Now Go On

"You embarrass me with your gift. I forgot to get you one," he said.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Today more than 16,000 boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Clubs, attended the regular meetings held in the 15 Warner Theaters, and in addition to enjoying the special Christmas entertainment offered, they were all greeted by Santa Claus and received from him the stockings they had brought to the theater and which he had filled with candy, fruit, nuts and toys.

It was a great party and many a member went home thrilled at having received from Santa the stocking well filled and with having shaken hands with him. Santa, as usual, had a word of cheer for each youngster and many of the younger boys and girls Santa took on his lap for additional words of cheer.

TALK OF SANTA

After the meetings the "kiddies" stood around the lobbies of the theaters telling each other what they hoped Santa would leave under their trees at home, when he pays his midnight visit tonight. Anticipation on the part of any youngster, as to what he will find under the tree Christmas morning, is second only to the joy of actually finding it there. And the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club were doing plenty of anticipating today. It is the fond hope of not only the secretary of the Junior Komic Club, but also of the managers of the various Warner Theaters where the meetings are held, and the personnel of the theaters also, that each member and all the boys and girls who are not members will find just what they wanted when they sleepily run in to see what Santa brought them in the wee small hours tomorrow morning.

The pupils of the Fairgreaves School of Dancing put on a Christmas program for the members of the Manor Theater, and in addition to the filled stockings, Manager Joe Blowitz had several other presents which he distributed to the children as they left the theater.

GIVE PLAY

At the Arsenal the members were entertained by a one-act comedy entitled "Santa's Toy Shop Christmas Eve." The cast of characters were:

Santa, played by himself; Josephine Land, Minnie Fundi and Eleanor Johnson, dolls. Tin soldiers, Tom Hart, Ernie Jenkins, Gresham McGuire and Ray Davis.

Russell Niggl played the part of the "Jack in the Box" and the monster who scared all the boys and girls was Walter Lunk. John Hilliard was the "drummer boy" in command of the tin soldiers and Stanley Kane took the part of Little Boy Blue.

Josephine Barran was the walking and talking "ma-ma" doll, and the dwarfs were Ray Lesner, Joe Otnigal and Ralph Mander.

It was a great show and there were grownups from all sections of the city in the audience. One group that was noticed in particular came from Carrick.

Well, boys and girls, tomorrow is going to be the greatest day in many of your lives, may it be happy and merry and may you long remember it.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

Etna-Harris—Joseph Schmidt, Joseph Lorth.

Kenyon—Francis Aiken, Sam Spagnola.

Rowland—Howard Potts, Robert Carr.

Belmar—Teresa Driscoll, Richard Schlachter, Jennie Lamia, Ruth O'Mara, Josephine Serina, Dorothy Sayre, Jeanne Lohmeyer, Joseph Halloran, Rose Ioria.

Wise Words

A miser grows rich by seeming poor; an extravagant man grows poor by seeming rich.—Shenstone.

Ability wins us the esteem of the true men; luck that of the people.—La Rochefoucauld.

Bugs Baer

Just Another Noble Experiment?

How will beer affect our manners and customs?

Probably make 'em much gentler.

It will be a terrific letdown from the high pressure bootleg era. But we will have to get used to it.

We will gradually settle back into our old Victorian rocking chair days. The temperance lecturer is already stirring in his hollow tree getting all set to deal forth his brimstone and sulphur.

The theatrical producer is dusting off "Ten Nights in a Barroom." Which play isn't half so terrible as five minutes in a Park avenue penthouse.

The bar fly will fly south again and be with us in the spring. The old time barkeep is training his mustache on a trellis and roaching his bangs. Then there will be the customer who goes hunting for big game among the pickles, the sardines and the sliced bologna on the free lunch shelf.

We predict that things will almost be the same. Of course, our pals will be a little older, a trifle more wrinkled and a shade paler. Twelve years is a long exile. Robinson Crusoe got back quicker than that.

The drys will get a new lease on appropriations because once again they will have a selling point. The boys talked themselves out of jobs in 1920. But they will again be eligible for the lecture platform and we advise them to go slower and make their racket last longer.

We don't mind a good temperance lecture once in a while. But we don't want the spielers to get too tough. After all, we gave them a 12-year trial and we are entitled to the same.

If, after a dozen calendars, we find that beer ain't what it's hopped up to be, we are willing to apologize handsomely all around. But we don't want the temperance oracles to get abusive during that period. Let them stick to parliamentary procedure and give every heckler a time at the bat.

After all, this is just another noble experiment and we may be wrong. We will tell you much better when we see you in school after the holidays.

In honor of Christmas, which comes only once too often every year, we have generously reserved the space below for you to write in any new gaggie on the subject you happen to have heard in the last 10 years.

Don't mention it; it's a pleasure.

ONWARD AND UPWARD

CHICAGO — Mayor Cermak, through a friend, has closed a deal for the U. S. rights to distribute Pilsner beer.

WASHINGTON—Taxes (federal, state and local) will probably run the price of beer to 20 cents a glass.

OTTAWA—Senator Watson's contention that 2.75 per cent beer is "just slop" is confirmed here. Canadians refused to drink the stuff when alcoholic content was thus limited in Canada.

NEW YORK — Saloons will not be permited to return, but a movement is under way to permit "beer cafeterias."

But if we repeal prohibition, what will there be to blame everything on?

ALL THRU THE NIGHT

It's the day before Christmas
And all thru the night
Father and mother
Will bicker and fight;
She wanted furs,
And he gave her hose;
He wanted peace
But he'll get, I suppose,
The same as last year
(Mother's that kind)—
She gave him, gladly,
A piece of her mind.

Merry Christmas!

There Is Much in the News of the Pittsburgh District That Is Conducive to Cheerfulness.

The Sun-Telegraph wishes everyone a Merry Christmas! And without desiring to be likened to Pollyanna, and in full realization of the fact that fortune has buffeted many persons severely, we believe it to be possible for most to catch something of the spirit of poor little crippled Tiny Tim and radiate cheerfulness over the holiday.

*There is much in the news of the Pittsburgh dis-*trict to bring good cheer. First, there is the weather, no small factor in promoting comfort and well-being. Forecaster W. S. Brotzman predicts it will be mild, and so will be helpful to the many who are going to make long automobile journeys in order to spend Christmas at home with the old folks.

And here is a little Christmas gift from the Western Pennsylvania oil refiners to help the motorists on their journey—the announcement of a cut of one-half cent a gallon in the prices of all grades of gasoline. The cuts in prices of many sorts have gone a long way towards compensating for reductions in salaries and dividends.

A score of organizations are giving Christmas dinners and parties in the Pittsburgh district for the children of the needy, newsboys, and others who are, as the social workers say, "under-privileged." Honor to the host of kind-hearted men and women who by their work and money have contributed to the success of these undertakings!

We salute, too, the Rev. Dr. David Lang, pastor of Shady Avenue Presbyterian Church, on his broad-minded and humane attitude towards the Sunday movies that the Warner Theater is presenting for the benefit of the destitute. Dr. Lang has promised his co-operation in this philanthropic enterprise. Money is not asked for admission to the Sunday movies, but everyone who attends is expected to bring a gift of food or clothing for the poor.

*High praise is due Miss Laverne Hamilton, 14-*year-old Oliver High School freshman, for her quickness of wit in saving 11-year-old Dorothy McAndrews from burning to death. Laverne saw Dorothy, with clothes blazing, running down the street, screaming for help. Laverne coolly took off her coat, wrapped it around the burning girl, and rolled her in the snow. Then, with the flames extinguished and Dorothy saved, Laverne modestly proceeded on her way.

*The heroine of this thrilling incident waves ap-*plause away, saying she was just practicing what she learned in school. A fine compliment, that, to the school. It is gratifying to learn that Dorothy, though confined to bed by her burns, is recovering and will be able to celebrate New Year. She is somewhat of a heroine, too, for bearing her suffering with such fortitude.

Fire and school are also associated in a news item from Crawford County, telling of the destruction of the Hayfield Township School. The school directors showed commendable energy and initiative in at once arranging for the rental of a residence in which classes will be held when the Christmas vacation is over.

A Pittsburgh hospital received yesterday a check for $2,000 from a local businessman. Although not officially connected with the institution in any capacity, he perceived the drain that charitable work was making on its resources and began giving it thousand-dollar Christmas gifts in 1929. He doubled the gift this year because of the unusual demands the hospital was required to meet. No institutions are more worthy of such help than the hospitals.

In buying automobiles the customers get their money's worth. We are reminded of this by a Pittsburgh Motor Club bulletin telling of the improvements that will be found in the motor cars to be displayed at the January auto shows. Competition between the manufacturers apparently is so keen that they put into their machines every possible cent's worth of value.

There is much of local interest in a statement issued today by Carl R. Gray, president of the Union Pacific Railroad, about the chemical treatment of water used in locomotives to prevent the formation of scale on the inside of boilers. The railroads have made remarkable improvements in the water used, with resultant prolongation of the life of locomotives and saving of fuel.

*Water-softening developments are of especial in-*terest to Pittsburgh because the water in our rivers, by reason of coal mine and industrial pollution, is exceptionally hard and corrosive. The local railroads were pioneers in the experiments of which Mr. Gray writes. It should be profitable to some of the industries of the Pittsburgh district to study what the railroads have done to combat the bad water evil.

*In view of the fact that the local supply of drink-*ing water has had a pronounced taste on several days recently—a taste which, while declared to be indicative of nothing unwholesome, was not pleasant—it is a satisfaction to learn that the State Sanitary Water Board plans to make surveys in an attempt to locate the causes of tastes and odors in various public water supplies of Pennsylvania.

Another branch of the State government, the Bureau of Fire Protection of the Pennsylvania State Police, also makes a timely statement in the form of a warning to "avoid inflammable trimmings and lighted candles on Christmas trees." Electric lights and non-inflammable decorations can be substituted without any loss of attractiveness.

How the Roosevelt family celebrates Christmas is described by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President-elect and the next mistress of the White House, in a copyrighted article to be published in tomorrow's issue of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. The American Weekly, issued as a supplement with the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, also will have some interesting Christmas features.

The frontispiece of the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph will be a full page reproduction of Guido Reni's celebrated painting of "Holy Night," showing the shepherds in adoration of the Virgin and the Christ child. It is suitable for framing. Some attractive winter scenes in and around Pittsburgh and 42 photographs of interesting babies add to the charm of the section.

The Night Before Christmas

(Copyright, 1932.)

With faces pressed against the pane
They scan the Wintry night.
No sleigh bells ring a glad refrain
No reindeer romp in sight.
No Santa Claus on Christmas Eve
To give with lavish hand—
They listen as the cold winds grieve
And do not understand.

For unemployment is a wraith
That reaps a painful toll
Of blasted hope and broken faith
In many a little soul.
The jobless feel the deepest woe
And bear the harshest cross,
When they must let the young ones know
There is no Santa Claus.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Battle of the Sexes

What is called "the battle of the sexes" will always go on, I suppose. I thought it would end when women got the vote and all their other rights and most of man's privileges.

* * *

But the battle of the sexes today is not for business supremacy or political power. It is for love-control!

* * *

Men have always held the love-control—and somehow they seem to be wielding it more coldly and determinedly than ever. It is the man, not the woman, who dictates the terms these days—and gets everything his way.

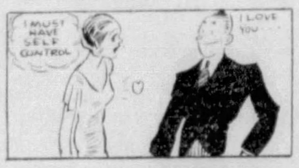
The Tender Passion has ceased to be a skilled fencing-match and has become a plain wrestling match, an open struggle for supremacy, beside which woman's fight for economic independence looks like a little game of ping-pong.

* * *

But the quickest and surest way to get love-control is not to TRY. The winner in the love-contest is the one who does not take the game too seriously—the one who keeps a cool heart, a steady head and a poker face, and does not overplay his hand.

* * *

You can get almost anything in this world that you want by going AFTER it—except love. But love, like your shadow, flees when you pursue it and follows you when you flee from it.



That is why men have had the love-control ever since the world began. Love is and always has been so much less important to a man than to a woman. Nature has given him a big handicap of nonchalance, indifference and self-assurance.

* * *

In love, a woman is always 20 leaps ahead of a man. Her mind is at the altar, putting up the decorations, while his is still floating around in the hazy flush of budding romance. She has the wedding day all set and the bridesmaids all picked out before he has discovered the real color of her eyes. By "beating him to it" she defeats her own ends.

* * *

No Don Juan was ever a genuine woman-hater. And no successful siren was ever an honest man-hater. They are too busy lighting one flame from the embers of another to get seriously cynical about it.

* * *

To win in the love-game, be sweet, be kind, be amiable, be lovable—but always keep your heart at a slightly lower temperature than the man's and your emotions held back to a slower pace than his.

* * *

Why should there be a "battle of the sexes," anyway?

* * *

You may win in business, in war or in politics by a "battle;" but the only way to win "love-control" is by sweet, friendly, amicable INDIFFERENCE.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—Many survivors of the holocaust still are squatters in Central Park, despite December winds. Some huddle in rock crannies; others, in dry rugations of the empty reservoir. And a few, in grotesquely contrived pup-tents, bivouac along purling streams of the hidden by-paths.

The end of summer left about 300 homeless ones there and, even in the present chill, nearly 100 remain. The police do not bother, unless there is destruction of property. Sun-up finds many shivering before shaving mirrors, tacked to trees. Or laving clothes, if weather permits, in pools.

Indeed, one rock cave, a domestic generosity of nature, is inhabited by a gentleman known to squatters as "The Colonel." He is a garrumphing aristocrat, who has buttoned his frayed coat, cocked a dilapidated hat and decided to go downhill with an air.

Passing, the other afternoon, I guiltily peeked behind the burlap curtain of his crevice. There was a blanketed mattress on the floor, a mirror, a candle. And on a jet of protecting rock, was a row of those badly made china shepherdesses designed to simper across the parlor mantle-piece.

Today, all squatters are men, mostly young and self-respecting. They cannot get jobs, but they will not accept charity. Their plight emphasis again that wild places of the earth have little use for men. A woman's touch is necessary to make a home. That's why it's so depressingly bleak.

* * *

Although ingenuity among jobless touches high peaks, nothing tops the gallant sortie of an ex-service man on Seventh avenue in the Thirties. A scrubby banner flaps across the entrance: "Come In and See How Animals Live—Free." In a dust-sifted room are crates containing a fox, coyote, prairie dogs, a weasel, possum and the like. In departing through another door is a sign: "Please donate 10 cents for the upkeep of the animals!" In Broadway's dopey Esperanto: "It's a living!"

Off stage, Judith Anderson is one of the human ordinaries. In every block one may see ladies far more personable. Yet, caught in the magic of the theater, she is beglamoured with a fascinating aura few actresses achieve. In many ways, indeed, she is the greatest dramatic player of our time. I was expressing my admiration to Fannie Hurst at an entr'acte. "And how marvelously she listens," added Miss Hurst. Which, in a revealing flash, sums up Miss Anderson's greatest charm.

East Twenty-ninth street has a strip of Little Old New York, which painters should imprison on canvas before obliteration by time or another building boom. Three-storied brick houses with lawns, tortoise-shell cats napping in lace-curtained windows and in one yard—before which I lingered for a half hour—was a double pear tree with the twin trunks circled by a rustic wooden bench.

* * *

Along Twenty-sixth street, I learned how barbers keep those red-and-white-striped emblems outside in constant twirl. A white-coated barber was winding up the clock works that keeps it going. I thought it was whirled by the wind.

Life has bounced two former editors into direct competition. Norman Anthony, leaving Life, launched that highly successful ribaldry called Ballyhoo. W. W. Scott, formerly an associate editor, now issues a competitor called Pastime.

* * *

I stopped at the Bronx Zoo to see the monkey, Jay, left there several weeks ago. A keeper halted him in a limb-to-limb swing tournament with about 20 cage-mates, and shooed him to the bars. He greedily snatched peanuts, but with no show of recognition, and scampered merrily back to his frolic.

* * *

While tarrying near the camel pen on the way out, one dromedary, in a scavenging head-sway for some tid-bit, blew his breath full in my face. Everyone has heard of the fabled pungency of a camel's exhalations, and knows they are not exactly scents from Arcadia. But you could chin yourself on this whiff. Yea, even skin the cat.

* * *

Drinking coffee, my portion of cream never exceeds three drops. Invariably it annoys others who, not knowing my iron will, insist upon my taking more. Last night my wife, after years of pent-up wrath, exploded: "Let him alone. He only uses just enough to make everybody mad."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Jesus,
They say
You were a carpenter;
A poor man like myself;
Born in the manger
Of a village inn,
And spending
All your years
With common folks;
A wandering worker
"Without where
To lay his head"—
Sweat stained and calloused,
With black, broken nails,
And heavy shoulders,
Bowed by many beams—
Like mine.

A carpenter?
Then, Jesus,
You, too, felt the fret
Of short, cheap jobs,
And knew the gnawing dread
Of Idleness—
That nightmare fear
That yanks a man from sleep
And sets him gulping
At the jeering dark.

And did you, too
Walk lonely streets at night,
And see
Through blurring rain
The lights burn warm
In houses you had built?
But where you—
Homeless, hungry—
Had no place?
And, seeing,
Did you feel
A dull, sick rage
Because we builders starve
While rich men feast?

I think you did.
For how Could you have gone
So bravely to that hill
To die for working men,
If you had never felt
A rage that made
That awful death
Seem sweet?

I'm sure
You knew it all—
The dirt,
The dread
And dreariness,
Which are our lot—
And even now,
Though you are safe with God,
You must remember
How it felt to be
A worker—here.
Then, since you knew it all,
Hear this,
A worker's prayer.

It's winter, Jesus,
And we're out of work;
Busted and jobless,
With the Christmas here—
Your birthday,
When God promised
Poor men peace.
Then, Jesus, ask Him
If He'll help us now!

Twelve million of us
Roam the streets today,
We, too, were shepherds once,
And carpenters,
Tailors and sailors,
Honest workers all;
But now we're loafers,
Stripped of homes and jobs,
And robbed
Of something dearer—
Hope and pride.
Twelve million
Desperate derelicts
Who once were men!

Ask God to help us, Jesus,
For no other can.
Tell Him how hard
The stone felt
When you looked for jobs.
Tell Him how sharp
The rain can cut
Through rags;
And how a man feels Standing helpless, while
His dear ones
Starve.

It's Christmas, Jesus;
And, perhaps, up there
In God's rich heaven
They are hanging wreaths
Because you're free.
But down here
We—your brothers—
Are in hell.

But you remember,
Don't you,
How it was?
Above the angels' song
You'll hear the cry
That once was yours,
And, looking back,
Will feel again
The pain;
And once more
Long to die
For working men.
Then, Jesus, in your pity
Save us now.
Ask God
To send help quickly,
Say you know
Our need
Because,
When you were working Hard times
Hit you, too.

Isn't It So?

It isn't scandal until it begins to interest people.

Some men seem to think a woman's mission is submission.

It isn't the cost of an airplane a pilot is interested in; it's the upkeep.

It is impossible to find any satisfactory substitute for living within your means.

Persons who try to get something for nothing usually end in getting nothing for something.

The down payment on trouble may not be so much, but you will have a lot of installments to pay for years to come.

Text For Today

For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble: and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch.—Malachi, iv:1.

Facts—By All Means

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

At this moment, it seems, judging by the personnel of the new government, that France will reverse herself on the debt payment of the 15th, and then ask for a reconsideration of the debt. Of course, there is nothing for this country to negotiate until the payment is made.

Meanwhile, the present administration is interesting itself in the debt situation to a degree that is interesting in view of its early demise. Its duty is to concern itself with the payments due on the fifteenth, and to do nothing calculated in any way to commit or embarrass the new administration on the general subject. The idea that now seems uppermost in the mind of Mr. Hoover is to appoint another "fact-finding commission" to be composed of "experts." We recall, apropos of the latter, that when the bankers took over the "settlement" of the reparation and kindred questions there was wild cheering in our most dignified journals and from our best people. "Now," they said, "we shall have results. These miserable politicians calling themselves statesmen have been shoved aside, and experts in finance have taken matters in hand. Glory be!"

And so, many people joined in the cheering.

* * *

The Trouble With 'Experts'

Now it appears that the "experts" muddled things terribly and have had just a little to do with making the mess we now are in. The trouble with "experts" is that they see the special point on which, as experts, they are interested, and fail to see the co-related points or to realize that there is a human equation in government—disgusting as that may be.

Experts are the agents of statesmen, and very valuable agents; but in matters of government the statesman must never be the agent of the expert.

For what do we have? Why the experts have trailed right back with their failure and dumped it into the laps of the statesmen; and so it always has been.

* * *

Not a Gift, But a Loan

There has been so much flagrant misrepresentation on the debts that we really need the facts, and if a "fact-finding commission" is necessary it can do no harm. Of course, the facts it will find may depend on the personnel on the commission. We can mention the names of distinguished gentlemen for this commission who speedily would report back as a "fact" that we of America really owe the debts; that we must pay the debts.

As to fact: On Sunday a clergyman in New York solemnly asserted that when the Liberty bonds were sold during the war the American people really thought they were giving the money. Now some of us who bought the bonds did not think so at all. And we have it on the authority of Mr. McAdoo, who had charge of the floating of the loan, that everywhere he went in urging the sale, he had to explain very explicitly that it was not a gift but a loan that would be paid back—like any other loan.

And we have it on his authority that the nations that got the loan never even suggested that the money raised was a gift.

Let us at least start out with "facts" and not the fictions of the propagandists.

* * *

Here Are a Few Facts

But if we are to have a fact-finding commission there are certain facts to which the American people will be entitled. Here are a few facts:

1. When we made the settlement on the debts before, how much did we forgive the debtors, and how much did it cost us?

2. At that time we greatly reduced the interest charges on the debtors but did not reduce the interest on the bonds we sold to get the money to loan the debtors. How much does that cost the American people?

3. Where are the Liberty and Victory bonds now? How many are owned by the financial institutions here that are insisting on the transfer of the debts, and how many are owned in England and how many in France?

4. If we set out to "liquidate the war," as urged, does that mean along with the wiping out of other nations' obligations on the debts, the wiping out of our own obligations on the bonds we sold to get the money represented by the debts; and does it mean the restoration to Germany of territory taken from her?

5. In other words, do they mean an actual "liquidation" of the war, or only a partial liquidation of the war that will leave Germany and the United States with the bag to hold?

* * *

All Promised to Reduce Armament

And there are other "facts" we should all like to have. Thus:

6. M. Laval complains that if France and the other debtor nations have to pay the debts in 60 years, the cost to them, in taxation, will be a tax on the industries of these nations in the field of international commerce. Now if the industries of these other nations are relieved of this tax, and all the burdens are put on this country, what will that mean in taxes on the industries of this country, and what will the effect of that be on us in the commercial competition, of tomorrow?

7. All the debtor nations promised to reduce armament. We should like to have facts and figures on the amount each was spending for war purposes August 1, 1914, before the war began, and how much they are spending now.

8. And, in that connection, we have a right to know what per cent of all the budgets of these nations is given to war purposes.

9. And if it be true that they are spending from 50, 65 and 89 per cent of all their revenues for war purposes and it would cost from 1½ to 3 per cent of all their revenues to meet the debts, why would it wreck civilization for them to pay the debts and would not wreck the world for them to go on spending appalling amounts for purposes of war?

* * *

How Is It Figured?

10. And since the actual plan is to pass the burden from all the debtor nations to this country there are other facts we should have. Thus:

How does our deficit compare with that of the other nations?

How do our taxes compare with those of other nations?

How does the state of unemployment here compare with that in the other countries?

How does the condition of agriculture here compare with that in these other lands?

In other words, if the other nations do not have the capacity to pay back what they borrowed at a low interest in 60 years, how is it figured that we have the capacity to pay for all of them at a much higher rate of interest?

* * *

A Very Important Fact

We have had a hard struggle to persuade the cancellationists to admit that it is not cancellation that is proposed but merely the transfer of the debts. At last that struggle is over. The President finally admitted it in his message. But the "experts" urging the transfer have been loath to answer any of the questions submitted here. These relate to "facts" that we are entitled to have in determining whether we want to accept the transfer.

How much in money will have to be raised by the taxation of our people to play the philanthropist in this regard?—that will be an illuminating "fact!"

And if, by accepting the transfer, we will make more than we lose—and we are open to conviction there—how is this to be brought about? That is a very important fact.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Dancers

Lithe young bodies, supple, light,
Whirling with a child's delight
In the motions of the dance
Down the smooth floor's wide expanse;
Bending bodies, sleek and slim,
Drifting to the music's whim
Like tossed flowers on the wind,
Every pose in grace defined.

Veils of color, light and sound
Clothe the dancers, spinning 'round
To a tempo faster grown,
On a wind more wildly blown.
Every joyous, ardent brow
Lifted up in gladness now;
Curving lips are red and warm,
Through their veins life's currents storm!

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

Do you know:

1. What is meant by hostage?
2. Who owns Prince Edward Island?
3. Where was the expression "dark horse" used by a statesman?
4. In what election year was the slogan, "Tippecanoe and Tyler too" used?
5. Who wrote "Casey at the Bat?"
6. What mythical hero cut off the head of Medusa?
7. In what war did Gen. Philip Sheridan command?
8. Terpischore, one of the Muses, was the patron of what art?
9. What is the male duck called?
10. Eugenics deals with race improvement through what?

Who wrote:

11. "There is a divinity that shapes our ends
Rough-hew them how we will."
12. "It is always good
When a man has two irons in the fire."
13. "It is not raining rain to me
It's raining daffodils."
14. "Reading maketh a full man."
15. "Sir, I would rather be right than be President."

Answers to today's tests:

1. A person taken as pledge of security. 2. Canada. 3. Disraeli. "All the ten to oners were in the rear, and a dark horse which had never been thought of, rushed past the grandstand in sweeping triumph." "The Young Duke." 4. 1840. 5. Ernest Thayer. 6. Perseus. 7. Civil War. 8. Dancing. 9. Drake. 10. Heredity. 11. Shakespeare, "Hamlet." 12. Beaumont and Fletcher, "The Faithful Friends." 13. Robert Loveman, "April Rain." 14. Bacon, "Of Studies." 15. Henry Clay, 1850.
